AQUITANIA AT DOCK FOLLOWING WILD CROSSING

Ambassador Kennedy Stirs Anger Of U. S. Passengers With Sub Warning

PASSENGERS HAVE JITTERS

Waiter Drops Tray Of Dishes And All Think Big Ship Hit By Torpedo

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 — Carrying two six-pound guns and several hundred Americans with a grudge against Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, the Cunard Line's Aquitania slipped quietly into New York today, painted a dull grey-black, the first armed merchantman to make the American landfall since outbreak of hostilities.

The grudge against the ambassador originated from a message read to the American passengers by C. K. Donald, American consul general at Southampton just before the liner sailed.

The message was in the form of a warning from Kennedy, that Americans sailing on the ship of a belligerent nation with naval convoy were liable to be sunk without warning.

Creates Consternation

The warning, according to R. J. Landry, editor of Variety, caused immediate consternation among the passengers, up until then cool and calm.

As soon as Donald had finished reading the message, Landry said, Vanvechten Shaffer, a banker of Cedar Rapids, Iowa arose and suggested that the Americans should immediately file a protest with the ambassador over phraseology of the warning which carried not a word of reassurance.

The protest was hastily drawn and about 30 of the Americans signed it before it was turned over to Donald to transmit. Meanwhile, nine passengers left the boat.

Kennedy Replies

Kennedy shot back an immediate answer in which he said:

"You know that I dislike more than anything else to add to any traveler's confusion at this time," but, he added, it was necessary for him to pass on any information he had because "every American on the ship would feel that I should make available to them all the information as it comes to me. The state department in Washington concurs with this point of view."

The ambassador wrote that many people told him they were sailing on a British ship because they thought it was safer than to stay in England.

"To that remark," he wrote, "we of course have not been able to offer any suggestions. The decision in the last analysis must rest with them."

The ambassador added, in unofficial capacity: "I ask you to remember that my oldest son, Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., is planning to sail on the Queen Mary."

MYSTERY WOMAN ON AIR URGES GERMAN REVOLT

LONDON, Sept. 16—An appeal to Germans to resist the Nazi government was broadcast by a mysterious woman announcer from Germany, according to a report circulated today by Reuters (British) news agency.

The story said that the woman broadcast her plea from within the Reich in the name of the general staff of the German army of freedom.

She was said to have appealed to her listeners to build centers of resistance against the Nazi government throughout Germany, adding: "We Germans are starving in the towns and dying in the trenches."

GERMANY AIMS AT DESTRUCTION

Foreign Editor Believes That Hitler Intends To Erase British Empire

BY J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Foreign Editor
Despite Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's somewhat naive acceptance of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's "eternal friendship" pledges at Munich last September, a great many thinking people have always held that Nazi Germany's ultimate aim is the destruction of the British Empire.

Hitler himself has never made this threat. The pages of "Mein Kampf" in fact are studded with pious references to England as a citadel of culture and progress. In one chapter, the fuehrer tells his readers that England will be allowed to retain India, for example, "because I would rather see India under English rule than any other."

But as the new world war proceeds along its bloody road of hate and desolation, casting its baleful shadow ever wider across the face of the globe, it begins to look as though Hitler's alleged regard for England was as false as his widely trumpeted loathing of Soviet Russia and all that bolshevism implies.

DEATH CHARGES TO BE PROBED AT LANCASTER

LANCASTER, Sept. 16 — The Fairfield County grand jury has been called to report September 23 to begin deliberations of two first degree murder charges and one alleging manslaughter.

Fred C. Moore, 52, of Pickerington, arrested in Massillon, O., several days before his wife's body was found stuffed in an upstairs closet at their home, is one of the persons named in a first degree murder complaint.

The death of Alex Stromstead, a guard at the Boys' Industrial School, near Lancaster, has resulted in first degree charges against Robert Lee, 18, of Norwood, Mass., and William S. Hart, 18, of Middletown.

The manslaughter charge is against Charles Blum, cited for driving intoxicated after his car killed Charles Thrush, 60.

BERGDOLL NOT A DESERTER, CLAIM HIS ATTORNEYS

NEW YORK, Sept. 16—Court-martial of Grover Cleveland Bergdall, World War draft dodger, scheduled at Governors Island on Monday, was postponed today after attorneys for Bergdoll secured a writ calling for his appearance in federal court next Tuesday.

Harry Weinberger, counsel for the draft dodger, contended that since Bergdall was never mustered into either the military or naval forces he should not have been convicted of desertion.

EAGLE TAKES LEADERSHIP AS ISOLATIONIST

Stay Out Of Europe's Wars, Lindy Tells Americans In U. S. Broadcast

BREAKS LONG SILENCE

Task Of Country Is To Stay Peacefully At Home, Is Aviator's Opinion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh moved into a position of leadership among the nation's "isolation" advocates today with his earnest plea for America to stay out of Europe's wars.

The lanky, blond flier broke an eight year silence to say, in an address carried over national radio networks, that it would be "madness" for this country to enter the European war. Without referring to the forthcoming congressional fight over President Roosevelt's proposal to lift the embargo on export of arms and munitions to the belligerent countries, Lindbergh said that if the United States took part in the war "several thousand airplanes and cannon" would not be enough. The entire resources of the nation would have to be thrown into the conflict, he added.

Wholesale Murder

"We are likely to lose a million men possibly several million, the best of American youth," said the aviator. "We will be staggering under the burden of recovery during the rest of our lives."

Solemnly, Lindbergh warned that this country now is faced with a vital decision. It must, he said, decide whether to "keep out of European wars entirely or stay in European wars permanently."

The task of this country, he went on, is to remain peacefully at home and preserve civilization. If dark ages come again to Europe, he said, it is this nation's task to keep alive the spirit of freedom and democracy in the world. Sentiment, pity and sympathy, he added, must be brushed aside.

"We must be as impersonal as a surgeon with his knife," he declared.

Warning Sounded

Lindbergh warned that foreign propaganda would seek to drag the United States into the conflict, and that American citizens must "look behind every article we read and every speech we hear" in order to resist a deluge of such efforts.

WORKER KILLED, FOUR HURT IN TUNNEL BLAST

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—One workman was killed and four others seriously injured today in a dynamite blast 125 feet underground in a water intake tunnel under construction on the south side.

Anton Troker, 42, foreman of the work crew, was instantly killed in the blast. John Benning, Howard Parrish, Edward Haas and John Inglich were all badly hurt and taken to a hospital. Six others were sent home after receiving medical attention.

The explosion happened when Benning struck a buried stick of dynamite with a pneumatic drill. Charles P. Harris, engineer in charge of the shift of twenty-three men, said the dynamite apparently had failed to explode in the regular afternoon blast.

FIRE CHIEF INJURED IN SPRINGFIELD BLAZE

SPRINGFIELD, O., Sept. 16—Fire Chief Grover Frick and four other persons were injured slightly early today when they were hit by a falling skylight while battling a fire in the assembly plant of the International Harvester Co. The flames, which caused damages estimated at $5,000, were believed to have been of spontaneous origin.

President Calls Congress Heads for Pre-Session Meet

DEMOCRATIC and Republican leaders of both houses of congress have been invited by President Roosevelt to a special pre-session meeting with him at the White House, Wednesday, September 20, presumably to discuss the program to be placed before the special session of congress which he has called for Thursday, September 21. Democratic chiefs who have been invited to the White House meeting are Vice President John Nance Garner, Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, Senator James Byrnes of South Carolina and Representative Sam Rayburn of Texas. Republican congressional leaders invited include Senator Charles McNary of Oregon, Senator Warren Austin of Vermont and Congressman Joseph Martin of Massachusetts. The special congressional session will consider proposed neutrality law changes.

GERMAN SUBS LOSING STING

Many Out Of Torpedoes And Others Need Fuel, London Dispatch Claims

LONDON, Sept. 16—Many of the German submarines in the Atlantic ocean have shot their last torpedoes and others are in need of fuel, the London Daily Telegraph reported today from Paris.

The dispatch said that this information was based on a semi-official report concerning intercepted radio messages from German U-boats.

The Allies' cruiser and destroyer squadrons, said the report are intensifying their submarine hunt and also are carrying out a systematic search for German freighters which are believed to be acting as "mother-ships" giving supplies to the German submarines.

It also was reported that a second group of German submarines have left their bases to relieve the undersize craft which have been operating for the last two weeks.

VELMA FINK ON STAND IN TRIAL AS BABY KILLER

FREMONT, O., Sept. 16—Mrs. Velma Baker Fink, 22, took the witness stand today in her trial on charges of murdering her 10-week-old son, Haldon.

Mrs. Fink appeared today because it was apparent that only through her testimony in a special Saturday session could she be on the stand before Dr. Louis Karnosh, Cleveland psychiatrist and first of the expert defense witnesses.

Defense Attorney Ben Dewey has announced he will attempt to prove Mrs. Fink was temporarily insane when she threw her baby into Green Creek, between her home in Clyde and Fremont.

Belief that Mrs. Fink was temporarily insane was expressed yesterday by Dr. E. A. Baker, who assisted at Mrs. Fink's birth and performed the caesarian operation at the birth of Haldon Fink.

Administration Seeks To Determine Strongest Case Possible In Fight For Repeal Of Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16—Administration officials are sounding out senatorial sentiment on proposals to scrap the entire neutrality act, except for the munitions control board, and return to international law in meeting war problems, it was disclosed today.

The action was taken, it was said, in an effort to determine the strongest case the administration can make in its fight for repeal of the embargo on shipment of arms, munitions and implements of war to warring European nations.

Initial reaction in the so-called senatorial "peace bloc" was that this would be the hardest proposal for the isolationists to battle.

At the same time state department officials were represented as holding that congress will not agree to simply return to international law, but will demand special prohibitions against travel of Americans and American goods in so-called danger zones, which would be described by the president.

Another development in the impending conflict in the special session of congress over repeal of the arms embargo was the discovery that there is marked coolness in the state department toward the "cash and carry" system of selling munitions.

Fear that the American merchant marine would be severely damaged if munitions must be transported in foreign ships was said to be one reason for the state department's attitude.

President Roosevelt was said to be undecided as to just what neutrality repeal program he will recommend to congress. He has made it plain, however, that he will base his recommendations on international law.

Administration leaders continued confident that congress will vote for repeal of the arms embargo by a big majority.

The administration, it was indicated, hopes to bring the special session to a close in 60 days, thus permitting sale of munitions to Great Britain and France to begin by October 1.

Leaders of the so-called "peace bloc" mapped plans to combat the argument that repeal of the arms embargo would create a mild business boom.

DRAFT MACHINE SET FOR OHIO

Military Detail Would Be Placed In Hands Of Election Boards

COLUMBUS, Sept. 16 — In the event of United States entry into the European War, Ohio election machinery could be employed to register those eligible for military service.

That startling thought was contained today in excerpts from a speech made in Delaware by Secretary of State Earl Griffith.

The secretary revealed that the Selective Service Council, federal board in charge of draft laws, had already been informed that the Ohio election system could be made available for military purposes.

In case of emergency, Griffith said, complete registration could be effected within from three to five days. The full quota of election workers would not be required for such a task, Griffith said and added that sufficient volunteers could be obtained to list registrants.

RAIN, COOLER WEATHER DUE FOR WEEK END

Showers and cooler weather, predicted for Central Ohio during the week end, may break a prolonged late-summer heat wave that has sent the mercury to the 100-degree mark during the last week.

Weather bureau officials predicted some relief by Sunday.

The temperature in Circleville Friday soared to 97 degrees, another record for that particular date. Each day during the last week saw a new mark established by the temperature. A hot summer of 1937 was eclipsed by the high readings during the last few days. The mercury dropped to 70 degrees during the night.

The blistering heat continued to take its toll of autumn crops. Farmers of the county are anxiously scanning the skies for signs of rain which would bring relief to parched farmlands and stem the certain reduction in estimated crop yields.

LONDON, Sept. 16—The ministry of information announced today that the Belgian passenger vessel Alex Van Opstal, a ship of 5,965 tons was sunk near Weymouth during the night.

The announcement said the neutral vessel was the victim either of a mine or torpedo due to "enemy action in violation of international law."

Bulletin
LONDON, Sept. 16—The British oil tanker Cheyenne has been sunk by a German submarine, the ministry of information announced today. The crew was rescued by the Norwegian freighter Idabakke.

The Cheyenne was a tanker of 8,825 tons, registered as under the ownership of the Anglo-American Oil Co., and sailing from the port of Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Bulletin
LONDON, Sept. 16—A Reuter dispatch from Moscow today said that Soviet troops machine-gunned and forced down a German bombing plane at Levsk in the Ukraine.

The five members of the bomber's crew, said the dispatch, were sent to Kiev.

PARIS, Sept. 16 — The khaki-clad army of France, 100 percent successful thus far in cleaning out advance German positions before the Siegfried Line, took up positions today believed to foreshadow a major offensive at almost any time.

The strict secrecy maintained by the high command made any prediction as to the actual start of the offensive impossible, but all indications pointed to an opening of full joint Anglo-French hostilities along the entire western front before many hours or days have passed.

Official communique No. 25, issued by the war office today, laid great emphasis on the repulse of a strong enemy counter-attack with artillery in the lower valley of the Nied River near Sierk, just south of the Luxembourg frontier, indicating that the main allied push may come in that sector.

Heavy German Fire
For once the French communiqué was sufficiently explicit that it was not necessary to read between the lines. It admitted that the preliminary French operations in the no man's land between the Siegfried and Maginot lines have been anything but simple due to heavy German artillery fire.

The French tactics followed in the all-important preliminary western front activities can now be described as follows:

First a terrific artillery barrage is laid down by the big guns of the Maginot line, aided by French and British aerial bombardments which serve also as reconnaissance flights.

Tank Corps Active
Tank corps and other mobile units are then sent into the fray, advancing yard by yard under the cover of the big guns. Additional units are then brought up on the right and left flanks of each advance.

CIRCLEVILLE TIGERS MAKE GREAT SHOWING IN SEASON OPENER

HOLY ROSARY VICTORIOUS IN TOUGH BATTLE

Local Organization Scores Touchdown In Drive That Shows Possibilities

Circleville High School Tigers, defeated Friday evening by Columbus Holy Rosary in a fast 13-6 gridiron classic, gave their hundreds of followers promise that before the year is ended the Red and Black will be represented by a smashing and fighting machine that will have to be reckoned with in South Central League competition.

The Tigers lost, but persons who saw the boys in action declare that the team coaches Roy Black and Tom Armstrong have put together a far superior right now to the one that ended the season last year. Brushing up is necessary in several spots, more confidence is needed and offensive blocking must be improved, but Red and Black followers believe those things are all a matter of time. The team that represented the Circleville school Friday night was well-drilled, it fought, it charged hard and low, it displayed an open game the like of which has not been seen on the Circleville side of the field for a long while, and it sent the large crowd of spectators home feeling pleased despite the loss.

Breaks Turn Tide

Two sudden breaks that might have been turned back caused the upset of the Tigers. It was in the middle of the third period that Chuck Bernhard, Rosary's tall and dashing captain, booted the pigskin out of bounds on the Tiger five yard line. Harold Smith immediately kicked out of danger to Paglione, who returned the leather to the Tiger 25. Three plays, including a lateral pass play that Paul Walters smeared, netted Rosary a loss of two yards before Bernhard went back to pass. He tossed a long and high heave to the north side of the field that Winters, by smart maneuvering, caught for a gain that put the ball on the two yard line. Bernhard smashed over for the touchdown on the first play, and booted the extra point while Finerman held the leather. Had the long pass been knocked down the Tiger would have taken the ball on the 27 and been out of danger at least for the time being.

Tigers Score

The Red and Black was not to be denied, though, even after Rosary threatened again. Circleville had received and made a first down before a Bowsher pass was partly blocked then intercepted by Henne of Rosary on the Tiger 20. Rosary moved the ball to the 8 on an over-the-line pass to Winters. When was held to two yards, Bernhard was stopped and a pass was grounded before Bernhard tried a placement. Bob Brown, Tiger center, blocked the kick, the ball rebounding to the 48 where it was Circleville's.

A pass to Walters, who lateraled to Moorehead gained nine and another pass, Bowsher to Walters, took the ball to the Rosary 27. Bowsher fired another pass to Smith who took it on the 10 and ran to the 3 before going out of bounds. Bowsher smashed to the 3-inch line and Smith followed his center over the goal for the touchdown. A pass, Bowsher to Walters, failed for the extra point.

Rosary Starts Drive

Rosary started another drive when Winters, starting end, grabbed Bowsher's short kickoff and returned it to the Circleville 40. At this point Rosary started to work an over-the-line pass, Bernhard to Winters, for which the Tigers found no defense. Circleville took the ball away from Rosary on the 15, but Paglione stemmed a Tiger drive with an interception that returned the leather to the Tiger 27.

A pass, Bernhard to Winters, over the goal line after Rosary had advanced to the 10 on the same play brought the touchdown. The Tiger secondary was sucked forward on this play, Winters being behind everyone to take the ball unmolested. Hill blocked Bernhard's try for the extra point.

First Half Scoreless

The first half saw no scoring but produced some excellent line play. The Rosary crew had a clear edge in the first part of the game, Bernhard's kicking being a big factor. The Tiger line was outcharged in the first period, but started to play Rosary off its feet in the second quarter, the Tigers as a result threatening as the half ended. On the last play of the half a Bowsher to Smith pass netted 21 yards moving the ball from the 40 to Rosary's 19. An-

Tiger Team Notes

The Tiger band did itself proud by maneuvering on the field between halves; congrats Mr. Zaenglein. . . . Freshman girls were too powerful for the sophomores in a tug-of-war, also between halves. . . . The officiating end went floozy again when Rodney Ross, reported to have been contracted to referee, failed to show up. . . . Ray Coleman, who starred in the Frankfort walkathon last year, refereed again. . . . Rosary was scouted by two McConnellsville, O., coaches; they saw a pretty good team, but one that should be easily beaten from the air. . . . Winters and Bernhard, who starred for Rosary, were all-Catholic League choices last year. . . . Both played brilliant ball. . . . The play of Bob Brown showed Roy Black that his center problem is answered. . . . The young fellow did brilliant work as did about a dozen other lads who entered the fray. . . . Bob Bowsher surprised many with his backfield play. . . . A little lower when you smash the line, Bow, and you're going places. . . . His passes were good, too, did you notice? . . . Tiger end play is much improved over last year, Walters, Jackson, Thompson and Orr all being plenty capable. . . . Harold Smith's never-say-die spirit means much to the Red and Black. . . . There were a good many sophomores in the game for the Tigers last night and some mighty good freshmen getting experience on the bench. . . . Of the starters only four were seniors, Walters, Hill, Smith and Bowsher. . . . Shea, Brown, Martin, Liston and Jenkins are juniors, and Jackson and Moorehead sophomores

FUTURE FOES OF TIGERS DO WELL AT START

Circleville's future foes did well in gridiron openers contested Friday evening. Three of its South Central Ohio League opponents gained advantages, Hillsboro defeating Monroe, 45-12; Greenfield McClain taking Bob Terhune's Clarkburg boys, 48 to 6, Washington 13; Mary's 0. Aquinas 14; Springfield 12; Groveport 20; North 7; Worthington 15; Beasley 12; Marysville 0; Delaware 0; Akron Buchtel 13; Canton Lehigh 6; Marietta 55; Gloucester 0; Dayton 19; Mt. Vernon 0; Toledo Walte 13; Peabody Mass.)

PLAN HOUND TRIAL

The Pike County Fish and Game Protective Association is planning a fox hound field trial and bench show Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

other pass that was started as the whistle sounded failed to connect. The Tigers out-first downed the Rosary boys 10 to 7, the first half count being 5 to 2 in favor of the locals.

The game produced many stars in the line and the backfield, every boy entering the game doing his best to win. Coach Black promised plenty of fundamental drilling next week with offensive blocking to bear the brunt of the work.

West Jefferson will invade the Circleville ballfield next Friday evening. The Jeffs, who defeated the Tigers 7-6 in the opener last year, will bring a veteran team to Circleville.

GALENTO AGAIN TOPS HEAP IN TITLE SCRAMBLE

Two Ton Blasts Lou Nova And Gets Nod On Technical K. O. In Fourteenth

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16—Established by this time as a perpetual and seemingly permanent rebuttal to everything that makes the slightest sense, Tony Galento, the well-known bar-keeper, today again was the outstanding contender for the world heavyweight championship, and again contributor of a lurid, gory, dramatic incident to the pugilistic scheme of things.

His technical knockout over Lou Nova in the 14th round of their knockdown and drag-out encounter last night won't be matched soon for sheer, raw brutality, bloodshed and the arguments left as an aftermath.

Nova came up from three clean knockdowns and two careening, stumbles to take a beating that left him close to serious injury and made you wonder how he survived at all. As to that, he wound up in Hahnemann Hospital to undergo hemistitching and observation by Dr. W. B. G. Terry of the state athletic commission. The fight might have been stopped as early as the sixth round, and was threatened with termination by Referee George Blake in the eighth. He finally got around to a belated rescue after two minutes, 44 seconds of the 14th with one more round to go.

Bloody Battle

Quite literally, he must have saved the young and game Californian from irreparable damage. By that time, Nova was reeling, punch-drunk, unable to defend himself or fight back, blinded by blood, etc., on and on and on. It was a little terrifying to everybody packed in the gigantic municipal stadium—that is, everybody except Referee Blake.

Some of the spectators—even down in the press row—had been clamoring for several rounds for the fight to be stopped. Actually, it wasn't a fight at all beyond the third round, except in occasional flashes when Nova somehow managed to land on the wide open, ever charging Galento.

And by the way, the latter was pretty good last night, even admitting that Nova never was and, of course, won't ever be now. Among other things, Galento went the 14 rounds fast and with power behind every punch he hurled, as betting odds of 1 to 3 on Nova were upset along with the experts—and Nova.

Confounds Reason

Thus did Galento confound reason again in a performance almost as startling as his bout last June with Champion Joe Louis, who was floored and perilously close to a knockout before he managed to finish off the fat, beer-swilling contradiction who can't but somehow does fight—and win.

With this victory he left the customary tirade of debate, that follows his fights, this time in defense or protest of the refereeing job by Blake, imported at a fancy figure all the way from California to satisfy all parties concerned as third man in the ring.

He said afterward that in all his career he had never seen a bloodier or tougher fight. He wanted to stop it in the eighth round, but Nova's corner begged him out of it, and finally he felt he had to intervene. Meantime, he warned Nova once for low-punching and Galento "five or six times" for gouging, heeling and other similar tactics.

He did all that—but more, too. He landed left hooks and straight right hands on Nova's features that audibly thudded and, as a matter of fact, so did Nova as he bounced on the floor in the third and 14th rounds from punches and in the eighth and 10th when he fell of his own volition.

Beginning of End

The beginning of the end became apparent early, after Nova had won the first round, for the opening two rounds he had ducked, pulled away from or parried Galento's left hooks—a dozen of them—then was clipped and sprawled headlong with Galento on top of him in the third.

Upon arising Nova was knocked into the ropes and his right eye began to drip blood.

He was battered unmercifully from then to the tenth, which he won quite beyond reason. He also took the 11th, with Galento resting. The latter began to bang and boom again to win in the 12th, 13th and end it in the 14th.

Nova went down twice, first under a left hook, Galento tumbling to the floor on top of him again. The right that sent him crashing down for the second time in the round left no alternative for Referee Blake but to stop it when Nova arose. He was standing up under a terrible lathering when Blake stepped in, lifted Galento's hand and brought

Boilermakers of Purdue A Big Ten Title Threat If Suicide Schedule Doesn't Crack Their Armor

Mike Byelene

IF YOU should visit the campus of Purdue university at Lafayette, Ind., and come on A. H. (Hal) Edward weeping off in a deserted corner, those tears are being shed over football. But it's about the Purdue schedule, not the team, that the coach wets his eyes.

Purdue has that tough a schedule this year.

The opener? With Notre Dame! And then comes—Minnesota! And for the third game—Michigan State!

As if that wasn't enough, the fourth—Santa Clara!

Getting to the point: If Purdue overcomes what may be a bad case of scheduleitis, the Boilermakers are going to be plenty headstrong in the conference.

Last Win in '29

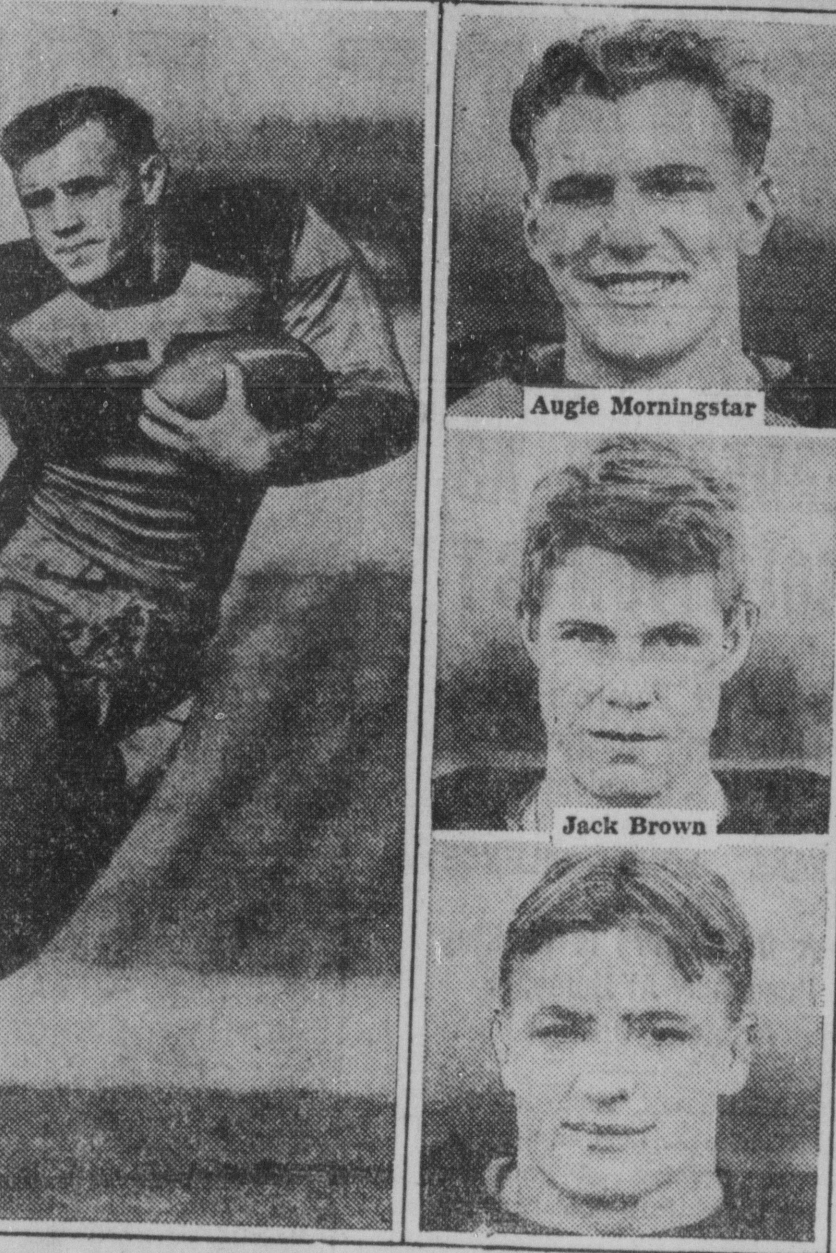

Runner-up last year, Purdue hasn't tasted a Western Conference victory all by itself since 1929. The team came close last year and with an even better club this season, it's easy to see why the team is rated one of the best in the loop. But, oh, that schedule! What is might do to the varsity and the reserves!

The Boilermakers have 25 let-terms back, all major ones. The team lost 16 men by graduation including five tackles, four backs, three ends, to centers and two guards.

The loss of Joe Mihal, tackle and generally regarded one of the finest linemen in the Big Ten last year, will be felt. So also will the absence of Paul Humphrey, center, and Tony Ippolito, fullback.

Speed Is Keynote

But the addition of several soph-

Augie Morningstar

Edward has one of the finest collection of bacon bringers in the circuit. They're known as the "B" men, in contrast to the Notre Dabe "S" men.

The "B" Men

They're reading anyway you wish, are Lou Brock, Jack Brown and Mike Byelene. They take care of the halfback chores.

Brown Is Star

Brown, a six-foot, 188-pound all-around back, comes from Stafford, Kan. Brown was climaxed his performances as a junior last year by returning a kickoff in the final game with Indiana 95 yards for a score, is what might be called a "quad-ruple" threat man. That is, he runs, kicks and passes with either hand.

"Midget" Mike Byelene, one of the several "Massillon," O., products on the squad, set himself up as a fleet open-field runner as a sophomore last season.

The Quarterbacking Job

will be ably manned by Ted Hennis, Fred Montague and Allen Shackleton, all senior lettermen.

For fullbacking assignment Coach Edward can choose between

Ted Hennis

Leon DeWitte, 186-pounder from Mishawaka, Ind., and Frank Winchell, 193-pound specimen from Southport.

Veteran Line

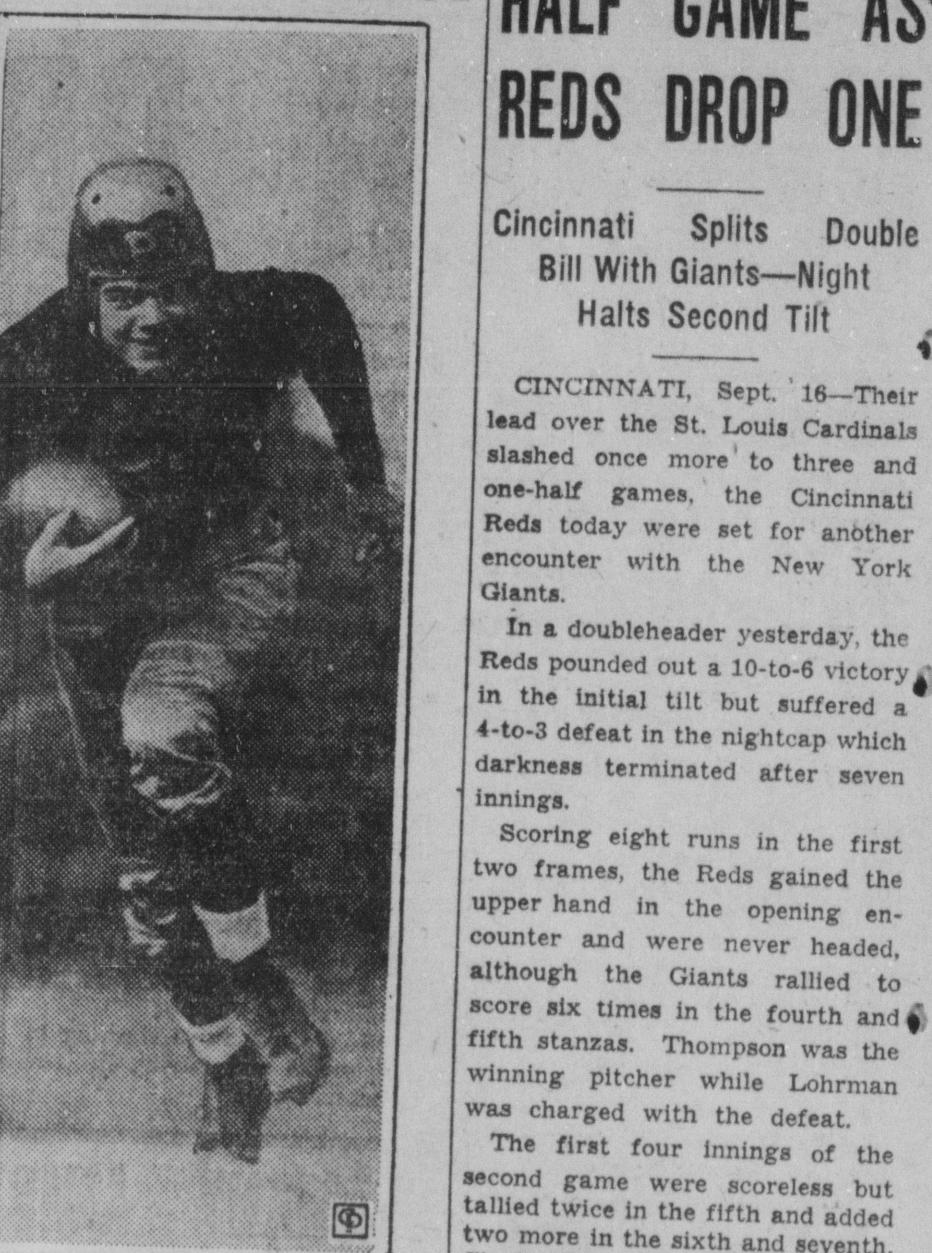

The line will be built about Carl Verplank and Frank Bykowski, veteran guards; Gene Britt, Felix Mackiequicz, Jack Krause and Dave Rankin, ends; Al Rossi, Dick Potter and Pete Timperman, tackles and Augie Morningstar, center.

Among the sophomores likely to gain a few headlines is John Galvin 170-pound Chicago fullback. Galvin was Bill DeCorrevont's biggest competitor during high school days.

The Boilermakers' Big Ten foes this year are Minnesota, Iowa, Northwestern, Wisconsin and Indiana. The Gophers and the Northwestern Wildcats will demand the most from the team.

Purdue Was Whipped Only by Minnesota

last year by a touchdown. The ties dotted the record, one with Iowa and one with Fordham, the latter a non-conference foe.

CARDS ADVANCE HALF GAME AS REDS DROP ONE

Cincinnati Splits Double Bill With Giants—Night Halts Second Tilt

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16—Their lead over the St. Louis Cardinals slashed once more to three and one-half games, the Cincinnati Reds today were set for another encounter with the New York Giants.

In a doubleheader yesterday, the Reds pounded out a 10-to-6 victory in the initial tilt but suffered a 4-to-3 defeat in the nightcap which darkness terminated after seven innings.

Scoring eight runs in the first two frames, the Reds gained the upper hand in the opening encounter and were never headed, although the Giants rallied to score six times in the fourth and fifth stanzas. Thompson was the winning pitcher while Lohrman was charged with the defeat.

The first four innings of the second game were scoreless, but tallied twice in the fifth and added two more in the sixth and seventh. Cincinnati's last inning splurge was cut short after three runs had crossed the plate. Schumacher the winning Giant hurler and L. Moore the losing moundman.

CIRCLEVILLE LUTHER LEAGUE BEGINS TO ARRANGE FOR FALL CONFERENCE

Ohio District To Send 300 To Sessions

Episcopal Laymen, Pastors Participate In Glendale Meet Sept. 22-24

The executive committee and officers of Trinity Lutheran Church Luther League will meet with Ohio District Luther League officers in Columbus Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to discuss plans for the Ohio district convention to be held in Circleville on Friday, Saturday and Sunday after Thanksgiving.

The Sunday conference will be at Hope Lutheran Church.

The convention will bring to Circleville more than 300 delegates representing 235 Luther Leagues of the Ohio district. Six sessions of the convention will be conducted.

Episcopal Church laymen from this area will attend the annual conference of the leaders of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, September 22 to 24. The Circleville church has not yet announced its delegates.

The Conference, known as "the Old Barn Conference," will be held at St. Edmund's Conference Center, Glendale, Ohio.

The conference of the laity will be preceded by a two-day conference of the clergy.

Bishop Henry W. Hobson, head of the Diocese of Southern Ohio, is in charge of the Conference.

Dr. Lewis B. Franklin, Treasurer of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, is to be one of the Conference leaders.

"The Christian's Responsibility in a Time of War" is one of the subjects on the program.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN RALLY DAY ON SEPTEMBER 24

The Presbyterian Church is planning Rally Day services next Sunday, September 24, in its Sunday school.

A special program is planned for that day by the superintendent of the two departments of the Sunday School. Franklin Price is superintendent of the adult division and Dr. F. C. Schaeffer is his assistant. Mrs. George McDowell is superintendent of the primary division.

LUTHERAN MEN TO PAINT PARSONAGE OF CHURCH

Members of the brotherhood of Trinity Lutheran Church will start next week to paint the church parsonage. Charles Goeller and Griffith and Martin have donated enough paint for two coats. Labor will be provided by the brotherhood men. Work is to start Monday at 7:30 a. m.

Micah—Messenger of Social Justice

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Micah 3:1-12; 6:8-8.

In the time of the prophet Micah the common people were oppressed by the rich; made to work hard for very little, and scourged when they rebelled.

Most of the prophets told the rulers just what they wanted to hear, because it meant that they then lived in luxury, eating of the fat of the land.

What does God want of us, asked Micah—sacrifices of many rams and "rivers of oil," or even a first-born son, for the sins of our souls?

To do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with God, is all that is required, Micah answered.

(GOLDEN TEXT—Micah 6:8.)

"Turn us again, O God: and cause Thy face to shine, and we shall be saved."—Psalm 80:3.

Church Loyalty Days Set For Sept. 30-Oct. 1

Loyalty Days in the Churches, September 30 and October 1, take on a deeply patriotic as well as religious significance this year, it is declared by the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, sponsor of this annual go-to-church movement.

"Loyalty Days this year should be a call to prayer and reconsecration to the cause of world peace, as well as a reaffirmation of our respective faiths," said the statement.

President Roosevelt has strongly endorsed observance of Loyalty Days. In a letter sent from the White House to Dr. E. Graham Wilson, chairman of the Executive Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, the President wrote:

"There never has been a time in our history when there was deeper need for calling our people to faith in religion than the present moment. In the contemporary conflict between nations and races and their philosophies of human society, we must keep undimmed our perspective on spiritual values."

President Roosevelt's communication was made public last night at Headquarters of the Religion and Welfare Recovery Committee, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, by Charles V. Vickrey, executive chairman.

The President wrote further: "Within our own nation we are pressed by problems, both national and international, which call for divine guidance and power. As we seek continued recovery, we need more and more to realize that our search will be in vain unless we meet, with spiritual forces, the materialism which has such disastrous effect on our national and international life."

"I am gratified to learn that the call is again going forth for the nationwide observance of Loyalty Day by our churches and synagogues, September thirtieth and October first, to bring the minds and hearts of men back to consciousness of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man and the sanctions of religion, in services of worship and dedication to these ideals. Upon them alone can the structure of our civilization rest in security and confidence."

"Very sincerely yours, 'FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT'"

The invitations reads: "Every citizen is cordially invited and every member is confidently expected to attend church or synagogue on Loyalty Days, Saturday, September thirtieth and Sunday, October first."

The slogan is: "Every citizen in a house of worship every week for rest, meditation, prayer, worship and life adjustment."

In giving out the statement, Mr. Vickrey commented:

"Had the above goal been reached or more closely approached in recent years, there probably would be no war in Europe today or war clouds over the rest of the world."

"Loyalty Days are a mobilization of the spiritual forces of America to strengthen the bonds of world peace and good will as contrasted with mobilization of military forces of Europe in international strife. The more than 10,000,000 soldiers now mobilized in Europe are given no option in answered daily roll-call. Just so every church member, who has any sense of loyalty to his religious vows, taken when he joined the church or was confirmed, should recognize the solemn obligation in these days of worldwide stress and peril, to acknowledge in formal church service; as well as in private worship, the fatherhood of God who 'made of one blood all nations of men.'"

Meetings at Trinity Lutheran Church next week include: Sunday, Von Bora society at close of morning service; Tuesday, Christ Church Luther League at home of Helen Margaret Kern; Thursday, 7 o'clock, junior choir; Friday, teachers' meeting, 6:45; Friday, senior choir, 7:15; Saturday, catechetical instruction class, 2 o'clock.

The worship period at the Methodist Church starts Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The service will be kept brief because of the summer temperature. The pastor will preach on "The Waymarks of Life," the choir directed by Mrs. James P. Moffitt will sing "O God of Nations" by E. K. Heyser.

"Spiritual Propaganda" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey at the morning worship hour Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church. The anthem by the choir will be "Lord, For Thy Tender Mercies' Sake," by J. H. Rogers. Organ numbers will include "Andante" from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony, "Serenade" by Braga and "Postlude" by Huhn.

Micah—Messenger of Social Justice ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

In the time of the prophet Micah the common people were oppressed by the rich; made to work hard for very little, and scourged when they rebelled.

Most of the prophets told the rulers just what they wanted to hear, because it meant that they then lived in luxury, eating of the fat of the land.

What does God want of us, asked Micah—sacrifices of many rams and "rivers of oil," or even a first-born son, for the sins of our souls?

Church Loyalty Days Set For Sept. 30-Oct. 1

Loyalty Days in the Churches, September 30 and October 1, take on a deeply patriotic as well as religious significance this year, it is declared by the National Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, sponsor of this annual go-to-church movement.

"Loyalty Days this year should be a call to prayer and reconsecration to the cause of world peace, as well as a reaffirmation of our respective faiths," said the statement.

President Roosevelt has strongly endorsed observance of Loyalty Days. In a letter sent from the White House to Dr. E. Graham Wilson, chairman of the Executive Committee for Religion and Welfare Recovery, the President wrote:

"There never has been a time in our history when there was deeper need for calling our people to faith in religion than the present moment. In the contemporary conflict between nations and races and their philosophies of human society, we must keep undimmed our perspective on spiritual values."

President Roosevelt's communication was made public last night at headquarters of the Religion and Welfare Recovery Committee, 60 East Forty-second Street, New York, by Charles V. Vickrey, executive chairman.

The President wrote further: "Within our own nation we are pressed by problems, both national and international, which call for divine guidance and power. As we seek continued recovery, we need more and more to realize that our search will be in vain unless we meet with spiritual forces, the materialism which has such disastrous effect on our national and international life."

"I am gratified to learn that the Call is again going forth for the nation-wide observance of Loyalty Day by our churches and synagogues, September thirtieth and October first, to bring the minds and hearts of men back to consciousness of the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man and the sanctions of religion, in services of worship and redemption to these ideals. Upon them alone can the structure of our civilization rest in security and confidence."

"Very sincerely yours, 'FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT' The invitations reads: 'Every citizen is cordially invited and every member is confidently expected to attend church or synagogue on Loyalty Days, Saturday, September thirtieth and Sunday, October first.'"

The goal is: "Every citizen in a house of worship every week for rest, meditation, prayer, worship and life adjustment."

In giving out the statement, Mr. Vickrey commented: "Had the above goal been reached or more closely approached in recent years, there probably would be no war in Europe today or war clouds over the rest of the world. 'Loyalty Days are a mobilization of the spiritual forces of America to strengthen the bonds of world peace and good will as contrasted with mobilization of military forces of Europe in international strife. The more than 10,000,000 soldiers now mobilized in Europe are given no option in answered daily roll-call. Just so every church member, who has any sense of loyalty to his religious vows, taken when he joined the church or was confirmed, should recognize the solemn obligation in these days of worldwide stress and peril, to acknowledge in formal church service; as well as in private worship, the fatherhood of God who 'made of one blood all nations of men.'"

W. F. M. S. MEETS NEXT THURSDAY IN CIRCLEVILLE

The Chillicothe district annual meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will be held in the Circleville church Thursday, September 21, forenoon and afternoon. Luncheon will be served at the noon hour.

Mrs. Charles Gerhardt is president of the Circleville unit. Mrs. John Dunlap, Sr., of Williamsport, is president of the district organization.

This meeting is important, according to the Rev. C. F. Bowman, because it adds inspiration and gives direction for the year's work of the society.

Church Briefs

The morning worship subject at Trinity Lutheran Church will be "Consistent Christianity a Strenuous Matter."

"What is Religion?" and "What Does Religion Do?" are two questions arising in the Sunday School lesson in the Methodist Church at 9:15 a. m. Sunday.

The sermon subjects of the Rev. W. D. Ramsey of Calvary Evangelical Church for Sunday are: morning, "The Voice of the Cross," and evening, "The Christ of the Crisis." Wednesday evening prayer service will start at 7:45 o'clock.

The deacons of the First Presbyterian Church will meet after the worship service Sunday.

Catechetical instruction preparatory to confirmation will be organized Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Trinity Lutheran Church. All boys and girls 12 years of age and older not yet confirmed are urged to be present. A number of children will be baptized in connection with Sunday morning services this week at the Lutheran Church.

The worship period at the Methodist Church starts Sunday at 10:30 a. m. The service will be kept brief because of the summer temperature. The pastor will preach on "The Waymarks of Life," the choir directed by Mrs. James P. Moffitt will sing "O God of Nations" by E. K. Heyser.

"Spiritual Propaganda" will be the sermon subject of the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey at the morning worship hour Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church. The anthem by the choir will be "Lord, For Thy Tender Mercies' Sake," by J. H. Rogers. Organ numbers will include "Andante" from Tchaikovsky's Fifth Symphony, "Serenade" by Braga and "Postlude" by Huhn.

Meetings at Trinity Lutheran Church next week include: Sunday, Von Bora society at close of morning service; Tuesday, Christ Church Luther League at home of Helen Margaret Kern; Thursday, 7 o'clock, junior choir; Friday, teachers' meeting, 6:45; Friday, senior choir, 7:15; Saturday, catechetical instruction class, 2 o'clock.

PASTORS MEET TUESDAY AT 4 TO ORGANIZE

The Circleville Ministerial Association will meet in the parlors of the Methodist Church Tuesday at 4 p. m. to elect a successor to the late Rev. Thomas C. Harper of the United Brethren Church. The Rev. Mr. Harper was serving as president of the association at the time of his death.

Several new members of the clergy in Circleville have been invited to attend the meeting and to join the organization.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey is secretary-treasurer of the organization.

To make the French troops really angry the German might try calling their western fortifications, "Adolf's Spite Fence."

The Salem Woman's Christian Temperance Union met on Friday afternoon, September 8, at the home of Mrs. Durbin Allen in Circleville with nineteen members and five visitors present.

The meeting was called to order at 2 o'clock with all singing "This is my Father's World" and Miss Mary L. Harpster, the president, presiding.

The devotionals were in charge of Mrs. W. R. Sheridan who read the Scripture lesson and prayer was offered by Mrs. Mollie Pugh. After singing "Work for Enforcement" the secretary, Mrs. A. U. Brundige, read the August minutes. This was a postponed meeting and time for the election of officers and Mrs. Lucy B. Price, the county president, presided with the following result — President, Miss Mary L. Harpster, first vice-president, Mrs. Anna Rice; second vice-president — Mrs. Maude Yapple; corresponding secretary Mrs. Anna Rice; recording secretary, Mrs. A. U. Brundige, treasurer, Miss Edna Rice.

The president announced that the State Convention will be held in Cleveland, O. and will be the Frances E. Willard Centenary Convention. The Pickaway county Convention will be held in Circleville, on Friday, September 29 in the United Brethren church on East Main Street with Mrs. Rose Henderson of Columbus the main speaker. It was voted to have all dues paid by January. A short talk by Mrs. Abbie Gusman a visitor and prayer by Rev. A. M. Forrester, another visitor. Other visitors were Miss Esther Batterson and Douglas and Nancy Paxton.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the M. E. church will meet on Wednesday P. M. in the Community Room. This will be the time for the report of the nominating committee, for new officers.

The Kingston Chapter No. 411 Order of Eastern Star will hold its first fall meeting, on Tuesday evening.

September 12 in the Masonic Temple. A covered dish supper will be enjoyed at 6:30, the committee composed of the following members — Mrs. Alice Brundige, Mrs. Ida Jones, Mrs. Clarence Jones, Mrs. Mary Metcalf, Mrs. Katherine Kuhn and Mrs. Margaret Lightner.

Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Bookwalter and family were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Williams on Saturday evening. Nancy Alice Williams accompanied her uncle David Terry and daughter Carol Anna to their home at Cedar Hill on Friday to remain until Sunday.

PARKING PLACES

THE great American problem is a place to park the car. This is not only a personal but a business problem. According to a survey conducted by the National Drygoods Association, most retail stores find their sales directly influenced by "the ease with which motorists may park their cars at a convenient distance."

Naturally there is a response to this need, in the form of a trend toward providing special parking space for customers in downtown areas. Also in the establishment by department stores of suburban branches where more parking space is available. Drive-in markets, too, are multiplying in the retail trade.

An interesting solution of the problem is provided by the Merchants Association in Oakland, Calif., which opened a cooperative parking project ten years ago. Last year it provided free parking for more than 1,000,000 shoppers' cars in six different stations.

Such facilities cost money, but are usually considered as paying a profit. Free parking, according to the Drygoods Association, costs 3.6 cents or more per car, but the average cost is only about one-tenth percent of net sales.

THE RIGHT TO KNOW

It may be that the stiff censorship imposed by the warring countries in Europe will be relaxed somewhat so far as Great Britain is concerned. The British public feels that citizens of a democracy who are loyally supporting their government have a right to more news than they have been getting. British newspapers are beginning to say that it would be better policy to have more real news and fewer rumors.

"The national executive council of the National Union of Journalists," says the London Times, "has expressed grave concern at the failure of the Ministry of Information to provide the public with adequate news of the war. It declares that it is in the national interest that prompt action be taken to reorganize the ministry so as to make it an effective instrument for keeping the country and neutral nations properly informed."

The problem has been discussed at a meeting of newspaper editors and officials of the Ministry of Information and an improvement in the situation is expected.

Americans, happily uncensored, believe that morale may be better sustained by a people who know the worst, along with the best, than by citizens kept uninformed and the prey of rumor and surmise.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

UNCLE SAM is taken less by surprise by present conditions in Europe than he was by war's outbreak in 1914. He's known for several weeks that fighting was impending. The other time he was caught completely off base. He might have known then, a decade ahead that the old world was working itself up to a climax. Trans-Atlantic statesmen all were aware of it. But the danger wasn't sensed then on this side of the water. It was there, as much as it's existed lately; only we didn't know it.

John Bull considered himself this globe's boss. The German kaiser was trying to break in on John's overlordship and Mr. Bull was determined not to let the Germans do it.

You could see the clash coming if you'd watched developments. However, few Americans had watched 'em develop. The then King Edward VII had. He'd framed up that "triple entente" including Britain, France and Russia.

The kaiser had, too. He'd effected an alliance including Germany, Austria and Italy. To be sure, at the psychological moment Russia double-crossed Britain and France, and Italy double-crossed Germany and Austria. Parenthetically, Russia just now has re-double-crossed Britain and France in favor of Germany and Italy.

Germany and Italy, incidentally, have double-crossed Japan. And there's a prospect that Italy will re-double-cross Germany and the Japs—in fact, already has equaled in the double-crossing of Nippon.

This double-crossing game is complicated.

BACK IN 1914

Anyway, we started off in early 1914 with two groups:

Britain, France and Russia versus Germany, Austria and Italy.

When Francis Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated at Sarajevo I was manager of a news service out of San Francisco. Having been for a long time a European correspondent I reckoned that this was a very bilious symptom, so I urged my local newspaper to issue an extra.

"Is 'Ferdie,' the editor asked, 'the Austrian emperor's son?'"

"No," I admitted, "he's his nephew, but he's his heir."

"If he were his son," declared the managing editor, "we might issue an extra, but not for a mere nephew." So they didn't.

A month later the World War started, because of that assassination.

Today, I'll bet an assassination of a near relative or associate of Herr Hitler would provoke some extras.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

ROUGH RIDE TO MANUFACTURERS

WASHINGTON—You might be able to feel sorry for the airplane manufacturers who got caught by the neutrality embargo with several hundred unfinished Allied airplanes, if it weren't for two facts.

In the first place, the French and British are paying for the planes whether they are able to take delivery of them or not; and in the second place, it was American airplane manufacturers who helped build up Hitler's present gigantic airplane strength to the point where the French and British must make feverish purchases in the United States to offset Germany. All of which puts the airplane manufacturers in the neat position of making money either going or coming.

In fact, they are the one group sure to profit from the new world war. Profits first started just about the time Adolf Hitler came into power in Germany in 1933. Up until then the German airplane industry was almost nil. Only commercial planes were being manufactured and even these had few new developments of motors or wings. Came Hitler, however, and suddenly Germany took a prodigious interest in aviation, so great an interest that it was plain to anyone that their planes could not be commercial. And at this exact moment American companies stepped into the picture.

MOTORS FOR GERMANY

Germany at that time needed new and up-to-date motors, so she purchased them from the Pratt and Whitney Company of Hartford, Conn. These shipments increased steadily so that by 1934, according to a Senate committee which subsequently investigated munitions, "Pratt and Whitney shipped engines to Germany in great quantities" (1934 was the second year after Hitler came into power).

These shipments were made when the State Department, in 1933 and 1934, was appealing to American aviation manufacturers not to sell to Germany but to assist the American Government in carrying out the terms of the U. S.-German peace treaty. (Mr. Hull reversed himself in 1935 and has been permitting arms shipments ever since.)

The Pratt and Whitney motors being sold to Germany had been developed with the cooperation of the United States Army and Navy. In fact, the Senate Munitions Committee went so far as to state in its official findings that "the Army and Navy help to design, develop, and finance the development of Pratt and Whitney engines which are sold subsequently with substantial profits for Pratt and Whitney."

SALE OF PATENTS

Despite this, the Pratt and Whitney people eventually sold their patents to the Bavarian Motor Company, giving that company the right to manufacture in Germany on a royalty basis. But it became

DIET AND HEALTH

When Your Stomach Blushes Too Easily

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE STOMACH is a good chemical factory. The chemicals it secretes are designed to reduce foods to a state where they can be absorbed.

Besides the response to food, the stomach secretion varies with the emotions of the body. Fatigue, rage, fear, excitement can stop or set loose the stomach juice. "Just as sensitive persons blush and blush

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

externally," writes Dr. W. C. Alvarez, "so also they may blush and blush internally." Perhaps your stomach "blushes" too easily and you call it indigestion.

The stomach is the grievance committee of the body. When anything is wrong anywhere, the stomach is likely to be upset.

One of the constituents of the stomach secretions is hydrochloric acid. It helps in the digestion of meats and proteins. When, for any reason, there is an increase in this stomach secretion, we have the picture of acid dyspepsia.

Its Symptoms

The symptoms of acid dyspepsia are discomfort, burning, feeling of a lump in the stomach, cramping, one or more hours after eating. The discomfort is located in the pit of the stomach. "Heartburn" is a common complaint; it consists of the regurgitation of acid food up the esophagus and into the mouth. The fluid may set the teeth on edge. Headache is a regular development. It may be present on waking, and may nag the patient through the day.

Treatment of acid dyspepsia is most satisfactory. The diet should be regulated. Sources of worry must be eliminated. Fresh air, sunshine, recreation cannot be emphasized too strongly.

Naturally, among the medicines the alkalis take first place. Milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda are prominently used among these. Milk of magnesia is magnesium oxide. It comes in two forms—light and heavy. There is no real choice between them. It neutralizes the acid in the stomach and is also laxative.

Good old soda, sodium bicarbonate.

nate, baking soda, is the standby of the acid dyspeptic everywhere. It may be taken in almost unlimited quantities. It is said to have secondary irritating qualities and to cause alkalosis, but I have seldom observed those effects. It causes "burping" because in uniting with the hydrochloric acid it produces salt and water and carbon dioxide gas. The gas dilates the stomach like a balloon, finally forcing escape—the "burp."

Other Alkalis

Other, and probably better, alkalis are calcium carbonate and bismuth.

Tobacco and alcohol should be excluded from the acid dyspeptic's routine.

The diet for acid dyspepsia should be mild and non-stimulating. Thorough and slow chewing and mastication of food is a habit to be learned. Avoid all fried, greasy and highly-seasoned food.

Select three meals from the following articles: Water, milk, cream, butter, egg malted milk (unsweetened), strained milk soups, gelatin (with cream), custard (not sweet), soft-boiled eggs, plain toast, properly-cooked grits, mush, wheat germ cereals or cream of wheat (with butter or with cream and a small amount of sugar), mashed potatoes (beaten up light with milk). Use very little salt or sugar and no condiments.

Later this diet can be amplified.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

K. E. B.: "Please explain the cause and treatment of scabies."

Answer: Scabies, or itch, is caused by a small mite which burrows into the delicate skin between the fingers. Along its burrow is a scab of blood, hence the name. Itch is the result of uncleanness, because the mite stays in clothes and bedclothes. Treatment is by rubbing in sulphur ointment for two or three nights. The sulphur treatment should not be kept up too long because sulphur irritates the skin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper.

The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Today's Horoscope

The year will be moderately favorable, according to all influences bearing on today's birthday celebrants. An elder will bring them gain, but they should be on the watch to guard against deception. A magnetic personality will mark the child born today. He or she will be clever, original, intuitive and subtle, but rather dreamy, impractical with a tendency to despondency.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOU

JERRY DALE'S mounting anger and indignation were impressive to those around him, as any big man is likely to be impressive when he is mad. In addition, of course, the absence of Shot and Lorena was enough to alarm everybody.

Jerry had hurried in to Blanco and proved that the missing ones were not there and had not been there. Then he had hurried back to the ranch with the disturbing news. Even so, Mr. Brazee and the other men present had been prone to keep calm.

"I tell you, Shot Rogers is a dependable man!" Mr. Brazee rumbled, in his deep voice. The middle-aged rancher showed grave concern on his countenance, but he was not one to be stamped into action, ever.

"It looks like it, doesn't it?" Jerry was sarcastic. "They were here 48 hours ago. They supposedly left for Blanco, but didn't. With all the killings around here of late—even Lorena herself being kidnaped—I should think you'd—"

Old Jasper Peters interrupted. "Young man, you are riled up because you are scared crazy Shot's tuk yore gal, is all." Jasper emitted an amazing stream of tobacco juice.

"The hell with that!" Jerry snapped.

"It don't do no good to git mad—you git mad too easy, by han'! You jest snorted around here showing off yore muscles, whilst Shot he up and made love to th' gal in a more convincin' way. I'll bet five dollars they've run off somers and wed!"

Jasper's speculation in the matter seemed logical, the others agreed, all but Jerry and Mrs. Brazee. Sally Brazee shook her head.

"Lorena had no cause to elope, even if she loved Shot, which I doubt," Sally declared. "No, it's more'n that, Jasper. I'm worried to distraction, George."

"I'm afraid you got the situation better'n Jasper, Sally," her husband admitted. "I don't understand it, but I don't see why she wanted to elope, since she was grown and could have had him openly."

"That's all poppycock," Jerry snapped. "I might as well correct any such blather right now. She doesn't care a damn for Rogers. She—well, the truth is, I was going to marry her myself."

They all looked at him.

"Jerry!" Mrs. Brazee exclaimed. "I declare!"

"Why—" George looked his surprise.

"Son, I'm so happy about it!" Sally went on. "But I can certainly see how you feel about them, now. Why hadn't she why hadn't you all told us? Had you set the wedding date?"

"That's not a public matter." The young man was flushed with anger still. "The business at hand is locating her and Rogers, and being sure they are safe. And you can be darn sure Rogers'll answer to me."

"Well, I hope they're all right," Mr. Brazee declared, "but I want you to control that temper of yours, Jerry. Whatever turns up, you can't reasonably go off half-cocked, for Lorena's sake if for nobody else's. Rogers may be at fault. But wait till you are sure. If she's to respect you as a husband, you must—"

"Nuts. I'm going to get a horse and start searching. If the rest of you so-called ranch men have got guts enough to go with me, all right, but if you don't, then I'm going in to the county seat and round up a posse on my own."

For more than an hour Jerry alternately rode and walked.

That was eight o'clock at night, and it took George Brazee another half hour to convince Jerry that nothing could be accomplished at night. If they knew positively that Shot and Lorena were in trouble or even in danger, then the ranch folk would be justified in launching emergency efforts. But just to hunt blindly at night, over a range as vast and rugged and wild as the Phantom, was no idea where to go, where to start," George explained.

"Would you try east or west, north or south? It's likely they'll show up in the morning by themselves."

"But in the name of common sense, Mr. Brazee!" Jerry exclaimed at last. "Wouldn't Lorena herself, or even Rogers, know that they had—uh—eloped, as old Jasper called it, or just gone off to Tucson or somewhere, wouldn't they have notified us by now?"

"Yes, you're right there. Still, there's no telephone out here, and youth forgets, son. You would yourself. But the main thing is, it just don't make sense that she went off into the hills with him."

"I'm riding out at dawn," Jerry declared. "I'll go to the forks of the Ghost river—it's where most of them, come to think of it, they never have stolen any from the east range, have they?"

"No. No, the stock has all been slipped out by way of the stream, and nobody has found out how yet."

"That's where Rogers fell down. When I find Lorena, you let me take charge of that."

Jerry did not wait until dawn to ride out alone.

He aroused the men who had ridden with Rogers, and who were sullenly refusing to ride under Jerry's command, and told them what he planned to do. They promised to follow if Shot hadn't returned by breakfast time.

By breakfast time Jerry was four miles from the ranch home and in a little while he was wading up the middle branch of the Ghost. He realized he was taking considerable risk riding out alone like this, especially when he moved southward and doubtless crossed

Horoscope for Sunday

Great good fortune will attend those whose birthdays are today. They should make the most of the opportunities that come their way. The child born on this date will be shrewd and business-like, but also diplomatic. Artistic, musical and literary talent is indicated, also much all-around ability. Success in the medical world is shown.

One-Minute Test Answers

2. Thirty-one; Franklin D. Roosevelt is the 32nd.
3. A South American island, to the south of the Straits of Magellan.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, September 16

MUCH ACTIVITY is shown for this day, judging by the lunar transits, but it may be of a turbulent, violent and reckless nature unless extreme care is taken to curb rash, impulsive and other forms of temperamental behavior. Such aggravating action may impel elders, superiors or others of importance to withdraw their sympathetic support, and may also provoke reprisals in the way of subterfuge, deception and collusion. These might be placated and solid benefits derived by a show of moderation, self-restraint or amiability.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which all depends on moderate and calmly-deliberated conduct when drastic action seems to incite to agitation, strife or some other form of intemperate behavior. Elders and superiors may be aggravated to withdraw their support, but amiability and self-restraint may placate them. Be alert to duplicity and intrigue.

A child born on this day may be reckless, turbulent, quarrelsome and prone to "fly off the handle" on slight provocation. With youthful discipline it might make a suc-

For Sunday, September 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope is one of excellent promise for the conventional routines of the Sabbath day, although there may be developments of a sudden, surprising and uplifting nature. Superiors, elders and those in authority will have friendly and helpful impulses, and all mystical and cultural pursuits are under very stimulating and happy auspices. But be judicious with funds.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite opportunity for advancing themselves with employers and superiors, especially in lines pertaining to writings, publications or promotion, or in political or diplomatic circles, where strategy and tact may be utilized for promotion and progress. Sudden and drastic change may be necessary, but be prudent in the management of finances.

A child born on this day seems to be endowed with many talents and faculties for success in life, probably in literary, artistic or dramatic lines. But it also may have ability for politics or diplomacy because of its versatility and shrewdness.

the international line into Mexico. "The confounded border ought to be marked, or fenced. And patrolled." He growled it half aloud as his horse climbed.

He had to lead his mount around the rocky rapids. For more than an hour he alternately rode and walked, boosting the horse up sharp inclines with a long switch. Fury was still latent with him, and it did him good just to be exerting himself. He kept a constant lookout for signs, but saw nothing encouraging, no hint of another horse or of a human being, nothing, in fact, but some wild game.

Then without any warning whatsoever, he saw Lorena in the distance—coming toward him and waving!

"My god—Lorena!" he spoke aloud, even though too far away for her to hear.

When he came to her and leaped down, she was sobbing. Instantly he took her in his arms, holding her close, patting her and comforting her as best he could. He saw no evidence of injury, and he was too moved by emotion to talk at first.

"What—whatever happened, darling?" he whispered excitedly then. "Where is Shot?" she sobbed, moving out of his arms. "Jerry! Is Shot—is—he have—u found him?"

"Darling, I'm so happy to find you. I can think of nothing else. I'm taking you home at once." He stooped to lift her, but she resisted. "Where is he? Where is Shot?"

"Forget him, sweetheart. It's you that I—!" Jerry spoke very tenderly to her.

And Lorena misinterpreted him. She thought he was trying to soften tragic news. She had been waiting for long hours in a frenzy of worry and fear, lost in the rugged mountains; she felt that Jerry was doubtless one of a posse that had been combing the hills all night.

"Tell me, Jerry! Is—is Shot—dead?" She grasped both his arms and shook him hysterically.

"Poor little kid! Poor little kid! I'm terribly sorry, Lorena, but Escobar's thieves have killed men before this. Rogers knew what to expect. What I can't understand is why he brought you out here with him."

PARKING PLACES

THE great American problem is a place to park the car. This is not only a personal but a business problem. According to a survey conducted by the National Drygoods Association, most retail stores find their sales directly influenced by "the ease with which motorists may park their cars at a convenient distance."

Naturally there is a response to this need, in the form of a trend toward providing special parking space for customers in downtown areas. Also in the establishment by department stores of suburban branches where more parking space is available. Drive-in markets, too, are multiplying in the retail trade.

An interesting solution of the problem is provided by the Merchants Association in Oakland, Calif., which opened a cooperative parking project ten years ago. Last year it provided free parking for more than 1,000,000 shoppers' cars in six different stations.

Such facilities cost money, but are usually considered as paying a profit. Free parking, according to the Drygoods Association, costs 3.6 cents or more per car, but the average cost is only about one-tenth percent of net sales.

THE RIGHT TO KNOW

IT may be that the stiff censorship imposed by the warring countries in Europe will be relaxed somewhat so far as Great Britain is concerned. The British public feels that citizens of a democracy who are loyally supporting their government have a right to more news than they have been getting. British newspapers are beginning to say that it would be better policy to have more real news and fewer rumors.

"The national executive council of the National Union of Journalists," says the London Times, "has expressed grave concern at the failure of the Ministry of Information to provide the public with adequate news of the war. It declares that it is in the national interest that prompt action be taken to reorganize the ministry so as to make it an effective instrument for keeping the country and neutral nations properly informed."

The problem has been discussed at a meeting of newspaper editors and officials of the Ministry of Information and an improvement in the situation is expected.

Americans, happily uncensored, believe that morale may be better sustained by a people who know the worst, along with the best, than by citizens kept uninformed and the prey of rumor and surmise.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

UNCLE SAM is taken less by surprise by present conditions in Europe than he was by war's outbreak in 1914. He's known for several weeks that fighting was impending. The other time he was caught completely off base. He might have known then, a decade ahead that the old world was working itself up to a climax. Trans-Atlantic statesmen all were aware of it. But the danger wasn't sensed then on this side of the water. It was there, as much as it's existed lately, only we didn't know it.

John Bull considered himself this globe's boss. The German kaiser was trying to break in on John's overlordship and Mr. Bull was determined not to let the Germans do it.

You could see the clash coming if you'd watched developments. However, few Americans had watched "em develop. Then King Edward VII had. He'd framed up that "triple entente" including Britain, France and Russia.

Germany and Italy, incidentally, have double-crossed Japan. And there's a prospect that Italy will re-double-cross Germany and the Japs—in fact, already has equaled in the double-crossing of Nippon.

This double-crossing game is complicated.

BACK IN 1914
Anyway, we started off in early 1914 with two groups:

Britain, France and Russia versus Germany, Austria and Italy. When Francis Ferdinand of Austria was assassinated at Sarajevo I was manager of a news service out of San Francisco. Having been for a long time a European correspondent I reckoned that this was a very big symptom, so I urged my local newspaper to issue an extra.

"Is 'Ferdie' the editor asked, "the Austrian emperor's son?" "No," I admitted, "he's his nephew, but he's his heir."

"If he were his son," declared the managing editor, "we might issue an extra, but not for a mere nephew." So they didn't.

A month later the World War started, because of that assassination.

Today, I'll bet an assassination of a near relative or associate of Herr Hitler would provoke some extras.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN,

ROUGH RIDE TO MANUFACTURERS

WASHINGTON—You might be able to feel sorry for the airplane manufacturers who got caught by the neutrality embargo with several hundred unfinished Allied airplanes, if it weren't for two facts.

In the first place, the French and British are paying for the planes whether they are able to take delivery of them or not; and in the second place, it was American airplane manufacturers who helped build up Hitler's present gigantic airplane strength to the point where the French and British must make feverish purchases in the United States to offset Germany. All of which puts the airplane manufacturers in the neat position of making money either going or coming.

In fact, they are the one group sure to profit from the new world war. Profits first started just about the time Adolf Hitler came into power in Germany in 1933. Up until then the German airplane industry was almost nil. Only commercial planes were being manufactured and even these had few new developments of motors or wings. Came Hitler, however, and suddenly Germany took a prodigious interest in aviation, so great an interest that it was plain to anyone that their planes could not be commercial. And at this exact moment American companies stepped into the picture.

MOTORS FOR GERMANY

Germany at that time needed new and up-to-date motors, so she purchased them from the Pratt and Whitney Company of Hartford, Conn. These shipments increased steadily so that by 1934, according to a Senate committee which subsequently investigated munitions, "Pratt and Whitney shipped engines to Germany in great quantities" (1934 was the second year after Hitler came into power).

These shipments were made when the State Department, in 1933 and 1934, was appealing to American aviation manufacturers not to sell to Germany but to assist the American Government in carrying out the terms of the U. S.-German peace treaty. (Mr. Hull reversed himself in 1935 and has been permitting arms shipments ever since.)

The Pratt and Whitney motors being sold to Germany had been developed with the cooperation of the United States Army and Navy. In fact, the Senate Munitions Committee went so far as to state in its official findings that "the Army and Navy help to design, develop, and finance the development of Pratt and Whitney engines which are sold subsequently with substantial profits for Pratt and Whitney."

SALE OF PATENTS

Despite this, the Pratt and Whitney people eventually sold their patents to the Bavarian Motor Company, giving that company the right to manufacture in Germany on a royalty basis. But it became

DIET AND HEALTH

When Your Stomach Blushes Too Easily

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE STOMACH is a good chemical factory. The chemicals it secretes are designed to reduce foods to a state where they can be absorbed.

Besides the response to food, the stomach secretion varies with the emotions of the body. Fatigue, rage, fear, excitement can stop or set loose the stomach juice. "Just as sensitive persons blush and blush

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

externally," writes Dr. W. C. Alvarez, "so also they may blush and blush internally." Perhaps your stomach "blushes" too easily and you call it indigestion.

The stomach is the grievance committee of the body. When anything is wrong anywhere, the stomach is likely to be upset.

One of the constituents of the stomach secretions is hydrochloric acid. It helps in the digestion of meats and proteins. When, for any reason, there is an increase in this stomach secretion, we have the picture of acid dyspepsia.

Its Symptoms

The symptoms of acid dyspepsia are discomfort, burning, feeling of a lump in the stomach, cramping, one or more hours after eating. The discomfort is located in the pit of the stomach. "Heartburn" is a common complaint; it consists of the regurgitation of acid food up the esophagus and into the mouth. The fluid may set the teeth on edge. Headache is a regular development. It may be present on waking, and may nag the patient through the day.

Treatment of acid dyspepsia is most satisfactory. The diet should be regulated. Sources of worry must be eliminated. Fresh air, sunshine, recreation cannot be emphasized too strongly.

Naturally, among the medicines the alkalis take first place. Milk of magnesia and bicarbonate of soda are prominently used among these. Milk of magnesia is magnesium oxide. It comes in two forms—light and heavy. There is no real choice between them. It neutralizes the acid in the stomach and is also laxative.

Good old soda, sodium bicarbo-

nate, baking soda, is the standby of the acid dyspeptic everywhere. It may be taken in almost unlimited quantities. It is said to have secondary irritating qualities and to cause alkalosis, but I have seldom observed those effects. It causes "burping" because in uniting with the hydrochloric acid it produces salt and water and carbon dioxide gas. The gas dilates the stomach like a balloon, finally forcing escape—the "burp."

Other Alkalis

Other, and probably better, alkalis are calcium carbonate and bismuth.

Tobacco and alcohol should be excluded from the acid dyspeptic's routine. The diet for acid dyspepsia should be mild and non-stimulating. Thorough and slow chewing and mastication of food is a habit to be learned. Avoid all fried, greasy and highly-seasoned food.

Select three meals from the following articles: Water, milk, cream, butter, egg malted milk (unsweetened), strained milk soups, gelatin (with cream), custard (not sweet), soft-boiled eggs, plain toast, properly-cooked grits, mush, wheat germ cereals or cream of wheat (with butter or with cream and a small amount of sugar), mashed potatoes (beaten up light with milk). Use very little salt or sugar and no condiments.

Later this diet can be amplified.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
K. E. B.: "Please explain the cause and treatment of scabies."

Answer: Scabies, or itch, is caused by a small mite which burrows into the delicate skin between the fingers. Along its burrow is a scab of blood, hence the name. Itch is the result of uncleanness, because the mite stays in clothes and bedclothes. Treatment is by rubbing in sulphur ointment for two or three nights. The sulphur treatment should not be kept up too long because sulphur irritates the skin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Week Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Today's Horoscope

The year will be moderately favorable, according to all influences bearing on today's birthday celebrants. An elder will bring them gain, but they should be on the watch to guard against deception. A magnetic personality will mark the child born today. He or she will be clever, original, intuitive and subtle, but rather dreamy, impractical with a tendency to despondency.

CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER FORTY-FOU

JERRY DALE'S mounting anger and indignation were impressive to those around him, as any big man is likely to be impressive when he is mad. In addition, of course, the absence of Shot and Lorena was enough to alarm everybody.

Jerry had hurried in to Blanco and proved that the missing ones were not there and had not been there. Then he had hurried back to the ranch with the disturbing news. Even so, Mr. Brazee and the other men present had been prone to keep calm.

"I tell you, Shot Rogers is a dependable man!" Mr. Brazee rumbled, in his deep voice. The middle-aged rancher showed grave concern on his countenance, but he was not one to be stampeded into action, ever.

"It looks like it, doesn't it?" Jerry was sarcastic. "They were here 48 hours ago. They supposedly left for Blanco, but didn't. With all the killings around here of late—even Lorena herself being kidnapped—I should think you'd—"

Old Jasper Peters interrupted. "Young man, you are riled up because you are scared crazy Shot's tuk yore gal, is all." Jasper emitted an amazing stream of tobacco juice.

"The hell with that!" Jerry snapped. "It don't do no good to git mad—you git mad too easy, by han'! You just smothered around here showing off yore muscles, whilst Shot he up and made love to 'th gal in a more convincin' way. I'll bet five dollars they've run off somers and wed!"

Jasper's speculation in the matter seemed logical, the others agreed, all but Jerry and Mrs. Brazee. Sally Brazee shook her head.

"Lorena had no cause to elope, even if she loved Shot, who, I doubt," Sally declared, "No, it's more'n that, Jasper. I'm worried to distraction, George."

"I'm afraid you got the situation better'n Jasper, Sally," her husband admitted. "I don't understand it, but I don't see why she wanted to elope, since she was grown and could have had 'em openly."

"That's all poppycock," Jerry snapped. "I might as well correct any such blather right now. She doesn't care a damn for Rogers. She—well, the truth is, I was going to marry her myself."

"They all looked at him.

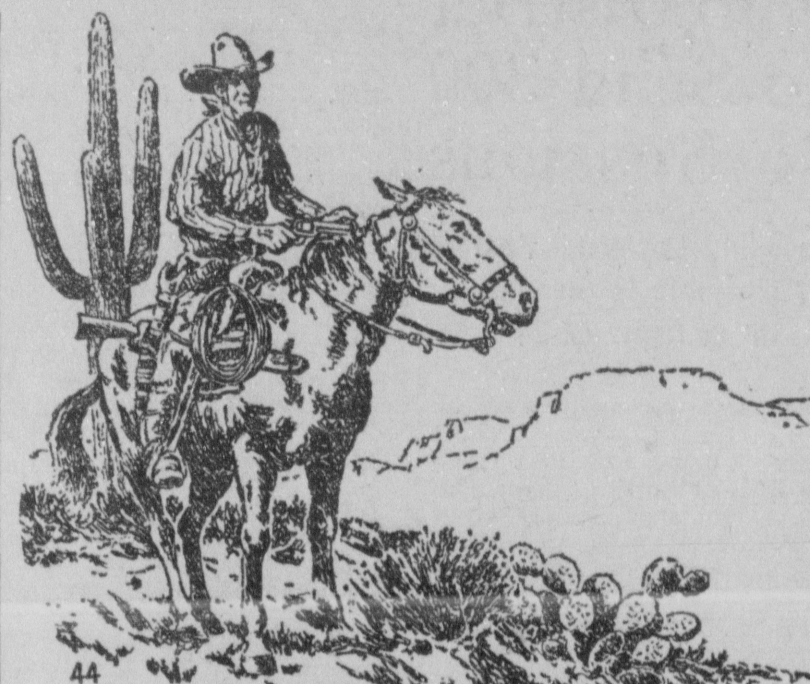

"Jerry!" Mrs. Brazee exclaimed. "I declare!"

"Why—" George looked his surprise. "Son, I'm so happy about it!" Sally went on. "But I can certainly see how you feel about them, now. Why hadn't she—why hadn't you and told us? Had you set the wedding date?"

"That's not a public matter," the young man was flushed with anger still. "The business at hand is locating her and Rogers, and being sure they are safe. And you can be damn sure Rogers'll answer to me."

"Well, I hope they're all right," Mr. Brazee declared, "but I want you to control that temper of yours, Jerry. Whatever turns up, you can't reasonably go off half-cocked, for Lorena's sake if for nobody else's. Rogers may be at fault. But wait till you are sure. If she's to respect you as a husband, you must—"

"Nuts. I'm going to get a horse and start searching. If the rest of you so-called ranch men have got guts enough to go with me, all right, but if you don't, then I'm going in to the county seat and round up a posse on my own."

That was eight o'clock at night, and it took George Brazee another half hour to convince Jerry that nothing could be accomplished at night. If they knew positively that Shot and Lorena were in trouble or even in danger, then the ranch folk would be justified in launching emergency efforts. But just to hunt blindly at night, over a range as vast and rugged and wild as the Phantom, was veritable folly.

"You'd have no idea where to go, where to start," George explained. "Would you try east or west, north or south? It's likely they'll show up in the morning by themselves."

"But in the name of common sense, Mr. Brazee!" Jerry exclaimed at last. "Wouldn't Lorena herself or even Rogers, know that we'd be worrying about them? If they had—uh—eloped, as old Jas suggested, or just gone off to Tucson or somewhere, wouldn't they have notified us by now?"

"Yes. You're right there. Still, there's no telephone out here, and youth forgets, son. You would yourself. But the main thing is, it just don't make sense that she went off into the hills with him."

"I'm riding out at dawn," Jerry declared. "I'll go to the forks of the Ghost river—it's where most of the cows have been stolen—all of them, come to think of it. They never have stolen any from the east range, have they?"

"No. No, the stock has all been slipped out by way of the stream, and nobody has found out how yet."

"That's where Rogers fell down. When I find Lorena, you let me take charge of that."

Jerry did not wait until dawn to ride out alone. He aroused the men who had ridden with Rogers, and who were sullenly refusing to ride under Jerry's command, and told them what he planned to do. They promised to follow if Shot hadn't returned by breakfast time.

By breakfast time Jerry was four miles from the ranch home and in a little while he was wading up the middle branch of the Ghost. He realized he was taking considerable risk riding out alone like this, especially when he moved southward and doubtless crossed

Horoscope for Sunday

Great good fortune will attend those whose birthdays are today. They should make the most of the opportunities that come their way. The child born on this date will be shrewd and business-like, but also diplomatic. Artistic, musical and literary talent is indicated, also much all-around ability. Success in the medical world is shown.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. A horse used for extraordinary occasions, as a small saddle horse ridden by ladies.
2. Thirty-one. Franklin D. Roosevelt is the 32nd.
3. A South American island, to the south of the Straits of Magellan.

STARS SAY—

For Saturday, September 16

MUCH ACTIVITY is shown for this day, judging by the lunar transits, but it may be of a turbulent, violent and reckless nature unless extreme care is taken to curb rash, impulsive and other forms of temperamental behavior. Such aggravating action may impel elders, superiors or others of importance to withdraw their sympathetic support, and may also provoke reprisals in the way of subterfuge, deception and collusion. These might be placated and solid benefits derived by a show of moderation, self-restraint or amiability.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which all depends on moderate and calmly-deliberated conduct when drastic activity seems to incite to agitation, strife or some other form of interperate behavior. Elders and superiors may be aggravated to withdraw their support, but amiability and self-restraint may placate them. Be alert to duplicity and intrigue.

A child born on this day may be reckless, turbulent, quarrelsome and prone to "fly off the handle" on slight provocation. With youthful discipline it might make a success in a definitely-creative and practical calling.

For Sunday, September 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope is one of excellent promise for the conventional routines of the Sabbath day, although there may be developments of a sudden, surprising and uprooting nature. Superiors, elders and those in authority will have friendly and helpful impulses, and all mystical and cultural pursuits are under very stimulating and happy auspices. But be judicious with funds.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite opportunity for advancing themselves with employers and superiors, especially in lines pertaining to writings, publications or promotion, or in political or diplomatic circles, where strategy and tact may be utilized for promotion and progress. Sudden and drastic change may be necessary, but be prudent in the management of finances.

A child born on this day seems to be endowed with many talents and faculties for success in life, probably in literary, artistic or dramatic lines. But it also may have ability for politics or diplomacy because of its versatility and shrewdness.

the international line into Mexico. "The confounded border ought to be marked, or fenced. And patrolled." He growled it half aloud as his horse climbed.

He had to lead his mount around the rocky rapids. For more than an hour he alternately rode and walked, boosting the horse up sharp inclines with a long switch. Fury was still latent with him, and it did him good just to be exerting himself. He kept a constant lookout for signs, but saw nothing encouraging, no hint of another horse or of a human being, nothing, in fact, but some wild game.

Then without any warning whatsoever, he saw Lorena in the distance—coming toward him and waving!

"My god—Lorena!" he spoke aloud, even though too far away for her to hear.

When he came to her and leaped down, she was sobbing. Instantly he took her in his arms, holding her close, patting her and comforting her as best he could. He saw no evidence of injury, and he was too moved by emotion to talk at first.

"What—whatever happened, darling?" he whispered excitedly then.

"Where is Shot?" she sobbed, moving out of his arms. "Jerry! Is Shot—is—have you found him?"

"Darling, I'm so happy to find you. I can think of nothing else. I'm taking you home at once."

He stooped to lift her, but she resisted. "Where is he? Where is Shot?"

"Forget him, sweetheart. It's you that I—!" Jerry spoke very tenderly to her.

And Lorena misinterpreted him. She thought he was trying to soften tragic news. She had been walking for long hours in a frenzy of worry and fear, lost in the rugged mountains; she felt that Jerry was doubtless one of a posse that had been combing the hills all night.

"Tell me, Jerry! Is—is Shot—dead?" She grasped both his arms and shook him hysterically.

"Poor little kid! Poor little kid! I'm terribly sorry, Lorena, but Escobar's thieves have killed men before this. Rogers knew what to expect. What I can't understand's why he brought you out here with him."

24 Tables In Play At Successful Card Party

The Democratic Women's Club of Pickaway County joined in a nation wide program of entertainment observing "Democratic Women's Day" by sponsoring a card party Friday evening in the Post room, Memorial Hall, to secure funds for party work. With Mrs. Orion King, chairman, the very successful affair was enjoyed by 24 tables of players, who passed the social evening in games of contract and auction bridge and euchre.

Mrs. King's assisting committee included Miss Emily D. Yates, Mrs. Bryan Custer, Miss Minnie Palm, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger and Mrs. Henry McCrady, Circleville, Mrs. Fannie Rector and Mrs. G. R. Gardner, Ashville.

Mrs. Hulse Hays, chairman, Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Mrs. Lawrence Goeller and Mrs. Howard Moore arranged the tables for the party.

Delicious homemade candy was provided for the affair by Mrs. R. P. Reid, chairman, Mrs. Lee Shaner, Circleville, Mrs. David Dunick, Ashville and Mrs. T. B. Gephart, Williamsport. The ticket sales were made by Mrs. George E. Gerhardt, chairman, Mrs. Erma Gehres, Mrs. J. C. Rader, Mrs. John Ward, Circleville, Mrs. George McMay, Williamsport and Mrs. M. C. Chamberlain, Ashville.

Score awards were won in euchre by Mrs. J. C. Rader, C. E. Brown, Mrs. Roy Spout, J. R. Keller, Mrs. Bessie Schleich, Roy Stout, Mrs. Mary Lanman, O. H. Lanman, Mrs. Hazel Neff, Lee Winks, Mrs. Ada Butts, Mrs. Roy Newlon, Mrs. Helen Newlon and J. S. Lanman; in contract bridge by Mrs. Forrest Brown, Mrs. George E. The committee on prizes included Miss Nellie Oesterle, chairman, Mrs. Wilder, Mrs. Mary G. Morris, Mrs. George Hammel, Mrs. William Justus, Circleville, Mrs. Max Gray, Ashville, Mrs. Turney Pontius, Thatcher, and Mrs. Lee Luellen, Williamsport.

The players were from Circleville, Williamsport, Ashville, Columbus, Chillicothe, New Philadelphia and various townships of Pickaway County.

Rehearsal Supper
Mrs. H. W. Plum of North Court Street was hostess at an informal buffet supper Friday evening preceding the wedding rehearsal of Miss Margaret McCollister of Chillicothe and Charles Plum of New York City.

The open church service will be Sunday at 4:30 p. m. in the Methodist Church of Circleville.

Members of the wedding party and of the immediate families were guests at the dinner, Mrs. F. M. McCollister of Chillicothe, mother of the bride-elect, assisting Mrs. Plum in serving.

A lovely centerpiece of pink and white carnations and pink and white candles were used on the attractive table.

Before her guests departed for their homes, Mrs. Custer served a seasonal lunch. Vases of garden flowers added attractiveness to the rooms of the home for the party.

Seeds-Tipton Wedding
Interesting to their many friends will be the announcement of the wedding of Miss Alice Tipton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Tipton of Williamsport, and Mr. Warren Seeds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Seeds of Ashville.

The single ring ceremony of the Methodist Church was performed at 6:45 p. m. Friday by the Rev. W. A. Moore of New Burlington, O., a former pastor of the Methodist Church of Williamsport.

The service was read before the fire place in the living room of the Tipton home where the improvised altar was banked with snowberry and decorated with vases of white gladioli. The tall ivory tapers and lovely flowers of the altar were effectively reflected in the large mirror above the mantel.

Miss Tipton was smartly gowned for her wedding in a floor length Empire frock of steel grey satin, the skirt styled with extreme fullness in the back. Puffed sleeves and a V neckline completed the details of the bodice, the bride wearing a lovely orchid at the point of the V.

Miss Martha Tipton, wearing a floorlength dress of periwinkle blue taffeta, served as bridesmaid for her sister. She wore a gardenia in her hair and completed her costume with a strand of gold beads, this being her gift from the bride.

Mr. Joseph Himmelstach of Columbus was best man for Mr. Seeds.

Members of the immediate families and the few close friends who were present for the ceremony were entertained at an informal reception and buffet supper following the wedding.

After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Ashville where Mr. Seeds is associated with the Citizens' Bank.

The former Miss Tipton, after graduating from the Williamsport High School, graduated from the School of Journalism of Ohio State University, where she was a member of the Chi Omega social sorority and of the Theta Sigma Phi, an honorary society of journalism.

Mr. Seeds after completing his studies in Ashville High School, attended Ohio State University where he was a Phi Kappa Pi fraternity pledge.

American Legion Auxiliary
The American Legion Auxiliary will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Post room, Memorial Hall.

Nomination and election of the 1940 officers are included in the plans for the business hour.

Presbyterian Women's Social Club
Opening a year of activities, the Presbyterian Women's Social Club met in the social room Friday evening under the leadership of Mrs. G. G. Campbell, new president.

More than 50 members and guests were present, Mrs. Campbell opening the program by reading a pleasant little poem, "Life is What We Make It."

Mrs. Leland Pontius, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and old and new business was disposed of. Mrs. Charles Naudmann closed the business and devotional period with prayer.

"Share our Vacations" was the theme of the program for the meeting Mrs. Campbell first calling on Mrs. Donald H. Watt who cleverly told many interesting details of a recent vacation she and her family had enjoyed in Michigan and Canada.

To succeed with flowers as well as vegetables the soil must be friable and mellow. The first step necessary usually is a deep turning of the soil, but even in the use of the spading fork there are a few pointers on the proper method which, if observed, will result in a better job done with less back-breaking effort.

Do not push the spading fork into the ground on a slant but instead sink the fork straight down into the soil to the full depth of the tines. If necessary, place the foot on top of the fork and use the weight of the body to sink the tines into the ground. Then use the hard ground behind the fork as a leverage point, to make it easier to pry the forkful of earth upward for turning.

As the forkful of soil is lifted, turn it over, completely. By completely turning over the soil it covers any weeds, anures or refuse you may be spading in. Break up any large lumps of earth with sidewise blows of the fork's tines.

Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey, and Mrs. E. O. Crites both covered about the same territory as Mrs. Wentworth in her trip through the Smoky Mountain National Park, and each added interesting details from their own observations. Mrs. Kelsey told of her stay in Georgia and impressions of the people, Mrs. Crites giving an interesting account of her visit in Miami.

Miss Florence Dunton then told of the trip she had made to Niagara Falls and to Greenfield, Mass., where she and Miss Mary Heffner visited Mr. and Mrs. Sewell Dunton. Her account of the many side trips and vacation experiences were much enjoyed by the audience. The club members were especially interested in the news of the visit with the Rev. and Mrs. Emil S. Toensmeier at Kent, Conn. The Rev. Mr. Toensmeier is a former pastor of the Circleville Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. H. P. Folsom greatly entertained the group with her story of her summer trip to Cape Cod, in company with Mrs. Elgar Barrere, Mrs. William Foreman, Circleville and Miss Mary Holman, Orange, N. J. Mrs. Folsom's talk included accounts of the many side trips enjoyed by the party and told briefly of their visit to the New York World's Fair.

Light refreshments were served from a candle lighted table covered with a lace cloth. A flat bowl of late summer flowers centered the table.

Old and new officers of the club were hostesses including Mrs. G. G. Campbell, Mrs. Glenn Nickerson, Mrs. Leland Pontius, Mrs. Hulse Hays, Mrs. B. T. Hedges, Mrs. Donald Watt, Mrs. E. O. Crites and Mrs. S. M. Pontius.

SENIOR RESERVE ELECTS OFFICER

At a special meeting held Wednesday afternoon, after school, the Senior Girl Reserves elected Jane Paul treasurer for the coming school year. Jane replaces Sally Shafer, chosen last spring to fill that office. Sally has moved to Celina, Ohio.

Jeanne Kinney, secretary, presided over the nominations and election. Mabel Noggle, president, gave each girl season football tickets to sell for the Stodge Club.

Miss Elma Rains, club adviser, was present at this meeting.

Senior Girl Reserves were in charge of the booth at the Holy Rosary - Circleville football game last night. Thelma Winner, chairman, Betty Clifton, Bonita Hulse, Betty Jackson, Eva Lemaster, and Betty Strawser were on the committee which worked the booth; and Marjorie Faunsauagh, chairman, Margaret Goode, Eleanor McDill, and Jane Paul composed the clean-up crew.

TEACHERS ELECT NEW PRESIDENT

At the close of last year's school term, the entire faculty of the schools in Circleville met in Kenneth Lea's room to elect officers to head the teachers' association during the school year of 1939-1940. The following officers were chosen at that time: Samuel Johnson, president; Thomas Armstrong, vice-president; Miss Margaret Rooney, secretary; and Miss Eloise Hilyard, treasurer.

New Schedule Goes Into Effect

OSU ANNOUNCES NEW PLANS FOR ANNUAL H. S. DAY

Principal J. Wray Henry announced Thursday that Saturday, October 7, has been designated as High School Day at Ohio State university. Owing to the fact that only one High School Day will be observed this year, the invitation has been limited to members of the junior and senior classes only. Also the price of tickets has been raised from twenty-five cents each to forty cents.

Main event of the day will be the football game between Ohio State and Missouri, the first game on the O. S. U. schedule. Mr. Henry requested that all juniors and seniors who expect to attend make reservations with him immediately.

At 10:30 a. m. a tour of the campus will be conducted. This will include demonstrations, inspection tours, exhibitions and other educational projects. Guides will conduct the pupils and university faculty members will be present in each building to explain the demonstrations and talk to the pupils.

Several highlights of the tour will include a swimming exhibition in the natatorium, demonstrations of sports by men's and women's physical education classes, inspection of the new journalism building which is to be used for the first time this fall, and an inspection of WOSU broadcasting studios.

Several motion pictures will be shown in connection with various demonstrations of photography and social administration. Also a short film will be shown in University Hall showing High School Day activities of last year.

Teachers, parents, chaperons, and other visitors may attend these activities as well as pupils. However, special admission price of forty cents for the football game is only for high school pupils and teachers.

FIVE SOPHS JOIN STAFF OF PAPER

Monday morning, the journalism class was organized and assignments were made for the first of the thirty-six issues edited weekly. Of the eleven pupils on the staff, five are sophomores: William Burgett, Frank Gelb, Wanda Grabill, Norma Starkey, and Eleanor Weaver; six juniors: Rose Anne Griner, Lloyd Jones, Leland Siegwald, Mary Adele Snider, Sam Stubbs, and Paul Turner.

To enroll in this course, one must have an average of B or higher in English for the previous year of school. This class is not open to freshmen.

Leland Siegwald is serving as editor for the first six weeks. His assistants, Lloyd Jones and Sam Stubbs, respectively, will succeed him in that office.

Rose Anne Griner and Mary Adele Snider have been appointed exchange editors for the first six weeks of school. Their duty is to send an issue of the Red and Black each week to a number of other schools on the exchange list. These schools, in turn, regularly send us copies of their school publications. In this way the class becomes better acquainted with various types of high school journalistic writing.

Miss Margaret Mattinson is again the faculty adviser for this class.

CHS OPENS NEW SPORTS SEASON

Friday, September 15, the Circleville High School football team took the field for their first game of the 1939-1940 season. Practice this year began August 21 due to no spring training.

David Yates and George Helwage have been chosen managers; Wilbur Sowers, who was manager last year, is assisting them. All home games will be played at night, starting at 8:00. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 29	Lancaster	Away
Sept. 26	West Jefferson	Home
Oct. 2	Greenfield	Home
Oct. 13	Frankfort	Away
Oct. 18	Bremen	Home
Oct. 26	Wilmington	Home
Nov. 3	Washington C. H.	Away
Nov. 10	Hillsboro	Away

ASSEMBLY SCHEDULED

Next Wednesday morning at 8:30 Earl Conrad will present a show demonstrating the art of Jiu Jitsu before an assembly.

Mr. Conrad states that he will prove that science and skill are more important to fighters than size and muscles.

BENNETT HEADS CHEERING STAFF

Cheerleaders for the 1939-40 football season are headed by Pat Bennett, assisted by Mary Fickard, Peggy Goeller, and Jack Funk.

Senior cheerleader Pat Bennett is asking for volunteers, preferably from the eighth grade or the freshman classes, who want to try out for cheerleading positions.

According to all reports cheerleaders are working very hard to find new motions and yells for the students to use in the future.

EDITORIAL

SPORTSMANSHIP. To most of us this suggests fair play between contestants. But there is another kind of sportsmanship—spectator sportsmanship. At all contests of sports there is always a large number of spectators who are not aware of this type of sportsmanship.

WHAT MUST YOU AND I DO TO BE GOOD SPECTATORS? One of the biggest things to do is to overcome "booning" and otherwise "smart-alec" remarks to opposing teams. This practice does nothing to aid the home team but the reverse—a cheer when a visitor makes a spectacular play—might arouse a feeling of jealousy within the local players and raise their fighting spirit.

Another mistake made by many spectators is the attempted correction of umpires, referees, etc. These men have been hired as professionals to judge various contests. Maybe a referee does make a mistake which hinders the home team, but mistakes are unavoidable in any profession and when we "throw bottles at the referee" we blindly forget that maybe prior to this decision he has made a decision against the visiting team of ever greater importance.

With these pointers in mind might I suggest good sportsmanship as a spectator and remember that a pat on the other fellow's back might gain you one.

PUPILS RESUME STUDIES MONDAY

Classes began again Monday after a long summer vacation. Of course, some would say that the summer was short, but that is all a matter of personal opinion.

As the pupils of Circleville High sat in assembly on the first day of school, there was great variety in the expressions on their faces. Some were glowing with obvious joy at being back with old friends after a summer of separation. Others looked less happy, but so far there have been no signs of active revolt.

Although many could think of more pleasant things to do than go to school, all looked forward eagerly to the athletic events of the fall and winter, if not to more scholarly pursuits.

This promises to be a busy year for the junior class. It will take a lot of hard work to prepare for the Junior-Senior Banquet held every spring, but members of the class seem ready to cooperate with each other to make their undertakings successful.

For the freshmen in particular it is an important year. They are just beginning their high school careers, and during this, their first year, they will have to become accustomed to the many aspects of high school which are vastly different from the routine of the lower grades.

Although their first year is now over, the sophomores, nevertheless, will have to become accustomed to the new schedule, as will everyone else.

For the seniors this should be the most memorable of all their school years. They probably are looking forward to graduation with anticipation, yet with a tinge of regret, for this is the last September that they will return to high school.

—Beat West Jefferson—

TWO ASSEMBLIES HELD

A special assembly was held Thursday afternoon at 2:50. Principal J. Wray Henry requested information about some of the pupils who registered here last spring but have not been attending school here this fall.

School was dismissed immediately following this assembly.

Friday afternoon at 3:25 pupils assembled for a pep meeting during which Pat Bennett, Jack Funk, and Peggy Goeller led the cheering. After singing several school songs, school was dismissed.

HORST NEW INSTRUCTOR

This week Joseph Horst took his place as the only new teacher of the Circleville High School faculty. He replaces Kenneth Lea who resigned and is now teaching near his home in Delaware County.

This is Mr. Horst's first teaching assignment in public schools. He received a B. S. in education from Ohio State and has also taken graduate work.

SCHOOL ADOPTS SIX-PERIOD PLAN FOR 39-40 YEAR

This year two changes have been made in the program of Circleville high school. The first change is the shifting of classes from the eight period to the six period day.

The former routine consisted of eight periods of forty-five minutes each while the new system calls for six periods of one hour each. The new one hour periods are divided into forty minutes for recitation and classwork with the remaining twenty minutes for supervised study of the subject previously recited. The administration explains that this method is an aid to the student, in-as-much as he can study with his teacher.

According to the new system all extra-curricular activities will be held after school. These activities are optional to the pupil.

The second change in this year's school is the adoption of regular semester tests. These tests are to be given in an effort to give college-going pupils along this line so they will not be thrown abruptly into college examinations. Pupils in the following courses will be given semester exams this year: algebra, American history, biology, chemistry, English, French, geometry, Latin, physics, social civics, advanced algebra, trigonometry, and world history.

These semester exams will be supplemented by six-weeks' exams at the close of grading periods one, two, four and five.

CHS HAS ADDED IMPROVEMENTS, NEW EQUIPMENT

When pupils resumed school Monday, they could boast many improvements and much new equipment.

Several important improvements in the high school building are installation of a cement sidewalk, remodeling and painting of the high school auditorium with new stage curtains to be ordered in the near future, painting of the gymnasium and repair of gym railing, new roofing, and the addition of one hundred folding chairs for various uses in the building.

New texts for public speaking and books for shorthand classes have been ordered by the school board. The board has also approved additions to the high school library to the extent of three hundred dollars.

Thursday afternoon members of the football squad received various pieces of football equipment purchased by the Athletic Association. This equipment included twelve pairs of hip pads, the same number of shoulder pads, six pairs of blocking pads, eighteen new varsity game jerseys, and a similar number of thigh pads.

—Beat West Jefferson—

SEASON TICKETS SOLD BY CLUBS

This year, instead of the regular season football tickets, reserved tickets were issued. That is, one seat is to be used by the same person all year. This is the first time a plan of this type has been tried.

Virgil Cress and the Stodge club took charge of the ticket sales and were aided by the Senior Girl Reserves. The price of adult tickets is two dollars and student tickets one dollar.

Merry-Makers' Club
When Mrs. Bryan Custer of W. Franklin Street was hostess to the Merry-Makers' Club of the Order of the Eastern Star Friday, 26 members and seven visitors gathered in her home for the opening session of the fall.

During the brief business hour led by Mrs. Sam Morris, president, it was announced that Mrs. G. S. Corne would entertain the club Friday, September 29.

Sewing was omitted at this meeting owing to the extreme heat.

Before her guests departed for their homes, Mrs. Custer served a seasonal lunch. Vases of garden flowers added attractiveness to the rooms of the home for the party.

Seeds-Tipton Wedding
Interesting to their many friends will be the announcement of the wedding of Miss Alice Tipton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Tipton of Williamsport, and Mr. Warren Seeds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Seeds of Ashville.

The single ring ceremony of the Methodist Church was performed at 6:45 p. m. Friday by the Rev. W. A. Moore of New Burlington, O., a former pastor of the Methodist Church of Williamsport.

The service was read before the fire place in the living room of the Tipton home where the improvised altar was banked with snowberry and decorated with vases of white gladioli. The tall ivory tapers and lovely flowers of the altar were effectively reflected in the large mirror above the mantel.

Miss Tipton was smartly gowned for her wedding in a floor length Empire frock of steel grey satin, the skirt styled with extreme fullness in the back. Puffed sleeves and a V neckline completed the details of the bodice, the bride wearing a lovely orchid at the point of the V.

Miss Martha Tipton, wearing a floorlength dress of periwinkle blue taffeta, served as bridesmaid for her sister. She wore a gardenia in her hair and completed her costume with a strand of gold beads, this being her gift from the bride.

Mr. Joseph Himmelmast of Columbus was best man for Mr. Seeds.

Members of the immediate families and the few close friends who were present for the ceremony were entertained at an informal reception and buffet supper following the wedding.

After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Ashville where Mr. Seeds is associated with the Citizens' Bank.

The former Miss Tipton, after graduating from the Williamsport High School, graduated from the School of Journalism of Ohio State University, where she was a member of the Chi Omega social sorority and of the Theta Sigma Phi, an honorary society of journalism.

Mr. Seeds after completing his studies in Ashville High School, attended Ohio State University where he was a Phi Kappa Pi fraternity pledge.

Miss Elma Rains, club adviser, was present at this meeting.

Senior Girl Reserves were in charge of the booth at the Holy Rosary - Circleville football game last night. Thelma Winner, chairman, Betty Clifton, Bonita Hulise, Betty Jackson, Eva Lemaster, and Betty Strawser were on the committee which worked the booth; Margaret Fausnaugh, chairman, Margaret Goode, Eleanor McDill, and Jane Paul composed the clean-up crew.

TEACHERS ELECT NEW PRESIDENT
At the close of last year's school term, the entire faculty of the schools in Circleville met in Kenneth Lea's room to elect officers to head the teachers' association during the school year of 1939-1940. The following officers were chosen at that time: Samuel Johnson, president; Thomas Armstrong, vice-president; Miss Margaret Rooney, secretary; and Miss Eloise Hilyard, treasurer.

New Schedule Goes Into Effect

OSU ANNOUNCES NEW PLANS FOR ANNUAL H. S. DAY

Principal J. Wray Henry announced Thursday that Saturday, October 7, has been designated as High School Day at Ohio State University. Owing to the fact that only one High School Day will be observed this year, the invitation has been limited to members of the junior and senior classes only. Also the price of tickets has been raised from twenty-five cents each to forty cents.

Main event of the day will be the football game between Ohio State and Missouri, the first game on the O. S. U. schedule. Mr. Henry requested that all juniors and seniors who expect to attend make reservations with him immediately.

At 10:30 a. m. a tour of the campus will be conducted. This will include demonstrations, inspection tours, exhibitions and other educational projects. Guides will conduct the pupils and university faculty members will be present in each building to explain the demonstrations and talk to the pupils.

Several highlights of the tour will include a swimming exhibition in the natatorium, demonstrations of sports by men's and women's physical education classes, inspection of the new journalism building which is to be used for the first time this fall, and an inspection of WOSU broadcasting studios.

Several motion pictures will be shown in connection with various demonstrations of photography and social administration. Also a short film will be shown in University Hall showing High School Day activities of last year.

Teachers, parents, chaperons, and other visitors may attend these activities as well as pupils. However, special admission price of forty cents for the football game is only for high school pupils and teachers.

FIVE SOPHS JOIN STAFF OF PAPER
Monday morning, the journalism class was organized and assignments were made for the first of the thirty-six issues edited weekly. Of the eleven pupils on the staff, five are sophomores: William Burgett, Frank Gelb, Wanda Grabbill, Norma Starkey, and Eleanor Weaver; six juniors: Rose Anne Griner, Lloyd Jones, Leland Siegwald, Mary Adele Snider, Sam Stubbs, and Paul Turner.

To enroll in this course, one must have an average of B or higher in English for the previous year of school. This class is not open to freshmen.

Leland Siegwald is serving as editor for the first six weeks. His assistants, Lloyd Jones and Sam Stubbs, respectively, will succeed him in that office.

Rose Anne Griner and Mary Adele Snider have been appointed exchange editors for the first six weeks of school. Their duty is to send an issue of the Red and Black each week to a number of other schools on the exchange list. These schools, in turn, regularly send us copies of their school publications. In this way the class becomes better acquainted with various types of high school journalistic writing.

Miss Margaret Mattinson is again the faculty adviser for this class.

CHS OPENS NEW SPORTS SEASON
Friday, September 15, the Circleville High School football team took the field for their first game of the 1939-1940 season. Practice this year began August 21 due to no spring training.

David Yates and George Helwagen have been chosen managers; Wilbur Sowers, who was manager last year, is assisting them. All home games will be played at night, starting at 8:00. The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 29	Lancaster	Away
Sept. 22	West Jefferson	Home
Oct. 6	Greenfield	Home
Oct. 13	Frankfort	Away
Oct. 18	Bremen	Home
Oct. 26	Wilmington	Away
Nov. 3	Washington C. H.	Home
Nov. 10	Hillsboro	Away

ASSEMBLY SCHEDULED
Next Wednesday morning at 8:30 Earl Conrad will present a show demonstrating the art of Jiu Jitsu before an assembly.

Mr. Conrad states that he will prove that science and skill are more important to fighters than size and muscles.

BENNETT HEADS CHEERING STAFF

Cheerleaders for the 1939-40 football season are headed by Pat Bennett, assisted by Mary Fickard, Peggy Goeller, and Jack Funk.

Senior cheerleader Pat Bennett is asking for volunteers, preferably from the eighth grade or the freshman classes, who want to try out for cheerleading positions.

According to all reports cheerleaders are working very hard to find new motions and yells for the students to use in the future.

EDITORIAL
SPORTSMANSHIP. To most of us this suggests fair play between contestants. But there is another kind of sportsmanship—spectator sportsmanship. At all contests of sports there is always a large number of spectators who are not aware of this type of sportsmanship.

WHAT MUST YOU AND I DO TO BE GOOD SPECTATORS? One of the biggest things to do is to overcome "booning" and otherwise "smart-alec" remarks to opposing teams. This practice does nothing to aid the home team but the reverse—a cheer when a visitor or makes a spectacular play—might arouse a feeling of jealousy within the local players and raise their fighting spirit.

Another mistake made by many spectators is the attempted correction of umpires, referees, etc. These men have been hired as professionals to judge various contests. Maybe a referee does make a mistake which hinders the home team, but mistakes are unavoidable in any profession and when we "throw bottles at the referee" we blindly forget that maybe prior to this decision he has made a decision against the visiting team of ever greater importance.

With these pointers in mind might I suggest good sportsmanship as a spectator and remember that a pat on the other fellow's back might gain you one.

PUPILS RESUME STUDIES MONDAY
Classes began again Monday after a long summer vacation. Of course, some would say that the summer was short, but that is all a matter of personal opinion.

As the pupils of Circleville High sat in assembly on the first day of school, there was great variety in the expressions on their faces. Some were glowing with obvious joy at being back with old friends after a summer of separation. Others looked less happy, but so far there have been no signs of active revolt.

Although many could think of more pleasant things to do than go to school, all looked forward eagerly to the athletic events of the fall and winter, if not to more scholarly pursuits.

This promises to be a busy year for the junior class. It will take a lot of hard work to prepare for the Junior-Senior Banquet held every spring, but members of the class seem ready to cooperate with each other to make their undertakings successful.

For the freshmen in particular it is an important year. They are just beginning their high school careers, and during this, their first year, they will have to become accustomed to the many aspects of high school which are vastly different from the routine of the lower grades.

Although their first year is now over, the sophomores, nevertheless, will have to become accustomed to the new schedule, as will everyone else.

For the seniors this should be the most memorable of all their school years. They probably are looking forward to graduation with anticipation, yet with a tinge of regret, for this is the last September that they will return to high school.

embarrassing for the Nazis to let the French know how rapidly they were making planes, so the Bavarian Motor Company wrote to Pratt and Whitney that they "did not want to reveal the number of engines manufactured." After that their royalty was obligingly changed by Pratt and Whitney to $50,000 annually.

That the Pratt and Whitney people were fully aware of the fact that they were re-arming Germany was indicated in a letter written by its vice president, C. W. Deeds, to the effect that "their (Germany's) situation had changed and it is obvious that they desire engines for military as well as commercial purposes."

The letter was written to recommend a new Hornet motor to the Nazis. This was just as Hitler launched his tremendous rearmament drive, and at a time when Secretary Hull still was trying to discourage arms shipments to Germany.

It is interesting to note that Pratt and Whitney was the one firm to stand out against Secretary Hull's move to dissuade the sale of planes to Japan because of that country's horrible massacre of civilians in China. Finally, when Mr. Hull announced publicly that Pratt and Whitney was the only airplane company still doing business with Japan, the firm capitulated.

Among those behind Pratt and Whitney are F. B. Rentschler, who has put up much of the money and whose brother is a high official of the National City Bank; also C. W. Deeds, formerly with the National Cash Register Company; W. B. Mayo, president of the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit Company; E. O. McDonald of the G. M. P. Murphy investment banking company; and

RISE OF LOCKHEED

One of the most prosperous aviation companies in the United States today is the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of Burbank, Calif., which has been earning from 7 cents up on its common stock (though not paying dividends), and recently floated 112,454 new shares of stock. Its export business has led all other American companies.

Today Lockheed is filling an order from Great Britain for 250 reconnaissance planes at a cost of $108,000 per plane (total cost $27,000,000), and received another order of 100 planes from the British just before war was declared. Lockheed's backlog of orders is in their neighborhood of $20,000,000.

Yet a few years ago the Lockheed company was negotiating with the giant internationally-owned Skoda munitions works for the purchase of secret airplane drawings and engineering data for only $30,000. Skoda was planning to use the Lockheed plans to manufacture planes for Germany.

All of which the Senate Munitions Committee to conclude that "American aviation firms did their part to assist Germany's rearmament" and thus to create the present predicament in which the world finds itself. The Committee named specifically Lockheed, Douglas, Pratt and Whitney, Sperry Gyroscope and Curtiss-Wright.

(Editor's Note—Another Merry-Go-Round column on the profits of the munitions companies will follow soon.)

WAR FLASHES

Ambassador Bill Bullitt in Paris has reported on the amazing sangfroid of the French in mobilization. He says French morale is magnificent . . . Probable reason why Ambassador Tony Biddle's villa was bombed in Poland is that he lived next door to Polish Foreign Minister Beck . . . What war will do to U. S. cotton surpluses is indicated by the fact that Henry Wallace has abandoned hope of any real results from his International Cotton Conference. The cotton problem is being solved by war . . . Tighter war censorship than ever before exists in Europe. Getting a proper perspective on this war is going to be tough . . . Highly significant is the fact that Roosevelt including in his neutrality proclamation the words "without interfering with the free expression of opinion and sympathy." This is the first time such a phrase has ever been put in a neutrality proclamation. It continues to reverse Woodrow Wilson, who asked that Americans remain neutral in thought as well as in action.

SALES TAX IN COUNTY CLINGS
TO GAIN SIDE

Sales tax collections in Pickaway County continue to show a steady increase over 1938. Collection figures disclosed by Don H. Ebright, state treasurer, show that during the week of September 2 the county sold $1,671.29 in tax stamps, an increase of $107.32 over 1938.

To September 2, 1939 the collection in Pickaway County was ahead of 1938 with comparative figures being $53,424.45 for 1939 and $50,238.33 for 1938.

Taxation experts declare the increase is a notable one because candy was taxable in 1938 and stamps for the sale of candy made a noticeable change in the state's revenue figures.

The Ohio tax collection for the first eight months of 1939 was $4,189,479.85 ahead of the same period in 1938.

TEACHERS TO BE NAMED

Action Taken Despite Fact That Transfer Still Is In Litigation

Monroe Township board of education prepared Saturday to take over the Muhlenberg Rural School District in accordance with a decision handed down by Judge Meeker Terwilliger that affirmed a ruling of the Pickaway County board of education transferring the district.

The Monroe board was to meet during the afternoon in the Darbyville school to consider employment of teachers and bus drivers and to decide other matters of business. Ansel Crownover is chairman of the Monroe board, other members being Earl Liston, Festus Hill, Mrs. Mary Brigner and Pearl Ingman. Fred Mitchell is the non-member clerk.

Whether the Monroe board will decide to retain the present teachers, previously employed by the Muhlenberg board is uncertain. John Weidinger, principal of the Darbyville grade school, was employed by the Muhlenberg board. He and other members of the teaching staff are expected to file applications with the Monroe board.

The district transfer was ordered by the county board after the state department of education revoked the Muhlenberg high school's first class charter. The county board ordered Muhlenberg's high school pupils to attend Monroe and decreed that the school district should go to Monroe embarrassing for the Nazis to let the French know how rapidly they were making planes, so the Bavarian Motor Company wrote to Pratt and Whitney that they "did not want to reveal the number of engines manufactured." After that their royalty was obligingly changed by Pratt and Whitney to $50,000 annually.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

That the Pratt and Whitney people were fully aware of the fact that they were re-arming Germany was indicated in a letter written by its vice president, C. W. Deeds, to the effect that "their (Germany's) situation had changed and it is obvious that they desire engines for military as well as commercial purposes."

The letter was written to recommend a new Hornet motor to the Nazis. This was just as Hitler launched his tremendous rearmament drive, and at a time when Secretary Hull still was trying to discourage arms shipments to Germany.

It is interesting to note that Pratt and Whitney was the one firm to stand out against Secretary Hull's move to dissuade the sale of planes to Japan because of that country's horrible massacre of civilians in China. Finally, when Mr. Hull announced publicly that Pratt and Whitney was the only airplane company still doing business with Japan, the firm capitulated.

HULL'S LEGAL POWERS

It is also interesting to note that in 1933 and 1934, when Mr. Hull was asking American firms not to sell arms to Germany, he had no legal power to restrain them. But after the Neutrality Act was passed in 1935 giving him that legal power, his career boys put him in the position of legalizing arms shipments to Germany, and he has continued that policy ever since.

Among those behind Pratt and Whitney are F. B. Rentschler, who has put up much of the money and whose brother is a high official of the National City Bank; also C. W. Deeds, formerly with the National Cash Register Company; W. B. Mayo, president of the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit Company; E. O. McDonnell of the G. M. P. Murphy investment banking company; and

One of the most prosperous aviation companies in the United States today is the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation of Burbank, Calif., which has been earning from 7 cents up on its common stock (though not paying dividends), and recently floated 112,454 new shares of stock. Its export business has led all other American companies.

Today Lockheed is filling an order from Great Britain for 250 reconnaissance planes at a cost of $108,000 per plane (total cost $27,000,000), and received another order of 100 planes from the British just before war was declared. Lockheed's backlog of orders is in their neighborhood of $20,000,000.

Yet a few years ago the Lockheed company was negotiating with the giant internationally-owned Skoda munitions works for the purchase of secret airplane drawings and engineering data for only $30,000. Skoda was planning to use the Lockheed plans to manufacture planes for Germany.

All of which the Senate Munitions Committee to conclude that "American aviation firms did their part to assist Germany's rearmament" and thus to create the present predicament in which the world finds itself. The Committee named specifically Lockheed, Douglas, Pratt and Whitney, Sperry Gyroscope and Curtiss-Wright.

(Editor's Note—Another Merry-Go-Round column on the profits of the munitions companies will follow soon.)

WAR FLASHES

Ambassador Bill Bullitt in Paris has reported on the amazing sangfroid of the French in mobilization. He says French morale is magnificent . . . Probable reason why Ambassador Tony Biddle's villa was bombed in Poland is that he lived next door to Polish Foreign Minister Beck . . . What war will do to U. S. cotton surpluses is indicated by the fact that Henry Wallace has abandoned hope of any real results from his International Cotton Conference.

The cotton problem is being solved by war . . . Tighter war censorship than ever before exists in Europe. Getting a proper perspective on this war is going to be tough . . . Highly significant is the fact that Roosevelt including in his neutrality proclamation the words "without interfering with the free expression of opinion and sympathy." This is the first time such a phrase has ever been put in a neutrality proclamation. It continues to reverse Woodrow Wilson, who asked that Americans remain neutral in thought as well as in action.

SALES TAX IN COUNTY CLINGS TO GAIN SIDE

Sales tax collections in Pickaway County continue to show a steady increase over 1938. Collection figures disclosed by Don H. Elbright, state treasurer, show that during the week of September 2 the county sold $1,671.29 in tax stamps, an increase of $107.32 over 1938.

To September 2, 1939 the collection in Pickaway County was ahead of 1938 with comparative figures being $53,424.45 for 1939 and $50,238.33 for 1938.

Taxation experts declare the increase is a notable one because candy was taxable in 1938 and stamps for the sale of candy made a noticeable change in the state's revenue figures.

The Ohio tax collection for the first eight months of 1939 was $4,189,479.85 ahead of the same period in 1938.

FIRE MAKING OF THE EARLY 19TH CENTURY WAS A COMPLICATED PIECE OF BUSINESS —

THE BRASS TINDER-PISTOL OPERATED BY PULLING THE TRIGGER OF AN IMITATION PISTOL TO STRIKE AN OLD STYLE SULPHUR MATCH — THE MATCH IGNITED A PIECE OF TINDER.

THE DANES OF ANCIENT TIMES USED FAT SEA-BIRDS AS LAMPS, INSERTING A WICK OF DRIED MOSS INTO THE STOMACH.

FOUR YOUTHS CHOSEN DELEGATES TO ANNUAL STATE 4-H CONGRESS

TWO BOYS AND TWO GIRLS WIN RECOGNITION

Joe Vause, Warren Beers, And Mary Kathryn Bowman, Virginia Ater Honored

ALTERNATES SELECTED

Expense Of Youngsters To Be Met From County Club Funds

Four of Pickaway County's leading 4-H Club youngsters were chosen Saturday to attend the annual 4-H Club Congress to be conducted at Ohio State University September 17-22. Two alternates were also selected, but they will not attend unless the principals are unable to do so.

Selected were Joe Vause of Ashville, a member of the Duvall Go Getters Pig Club; Warren Beers, Scioto Township Up and Comin' 4-H Club; Virginia Ater, Williamsport Food Club, and Mary Kathryn Bowman, Washington Township Clothing Club. The alternates include Mary E. Fischer, Jackson Nature Club, and Bus Hedges, Ashville, Duvall Go Getters Pig Club.

The expenses of the youngsters will be paid from funds sent to Pickaway County for 4-H Club work. The final selections were made by disinterested persons, 4 boys and girls being chosen for their outstanding work in the 4-H Club program.

A varied program of entertainment and education has been arranged for the 500-odd delegates who will participate in the Club Congress.

The group will be housed on the O. S. U. campus. The theme of the Congress will be: "Preparation for Living in a Democracy."

Included in the list of speakers will be Governor John W. Bricker, the Rev. James Thomas of the Broad Street Methodist Church, Columbus; Robert E. Segal, Chillicothe newspaperman; Dr. Frank Slutz, Dayton; Dr. Roy Burkhardt, Columbus; and A. B. Graham, 4-H Club discussion expert.

Numerous tours are planned during the week, exploratory trips being conducted through various departments of the university.

Individual counseling will be available with Lyman E. Jackson, junior dean of the college of agriculture of the university, being available to discuss future education with the delegates.

H. W. Harshfield, state 4-H Club leader, is in charge of arrangements for the Club Congress.

Mainly About People

ONE MINUTE PULPIT Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, it is no transgression; the same is the companion of a destroyer.—Proverbs 28:24.

Earl Weaver, Fred Griner, Emmitt Crist and Ray W. Davis attended the Cincinnati-New York doubleheader Friday afternoon in Cincinnati.

The gas-model airplane exhibition may be seen Sunday at 11 a. m. on the Wolford farm on the Chillicothe pike. Many Circleville persons plan to watch the exhibition.

Circleville Kiwanians will be guests of the Lancaster club Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club, a chicken dinner to be served at 6:30 o'clock. The Circleville club won the dinner by defeating the Lancaster club in two softball games. An interesting program is being arranged.

Mrs. Damon Pontius of Laurelville is a patient in Lancaster Hospital. Mrs. Pontius, who is assistant postmistress in the village, is suffering from a serious attack of cold.

Mrs. Melvin Yates, North Court Street, was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, Friday, for observation and treatment.

Hours Freshen! Ask your grocer for Honey Boy Bread or Ed's Master Loaf.

Miss Ruth Gard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gard of East Franklin Street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis recently at Grant Hospital, Columbus, was removed to her home Friday. She is improving nicely.

The usual rehearsal of Monday Club chorus will be omitted Monday evening.

EILEEN BRANNON, AGE TWO, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Double pneumonia that followed diphtheria caused the death at 10 a. m. Saturday of Eileen Brannon, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Brannon. The child died at the home of its grandfather, William Seymour, 620 South Scioto Street, after an illness of two weeks. The Brannons are residents of Akron, but had been visiting at the Seymour home.

At the same time that the death was announced, the city health office quarantined the residence of Forest Tomlinson, 724 Maplewood Avenue, where a Tomlinson child is ill of diphtheria. The stricken child is 2, health officials said.

The Brannon child became ill shortly after coming to Circleville. Diphtheria struck the child first and then pneumonia developed.

The funeral will be Monday at 2 p. m. at the Seymour home, the Rev. Mrs. A. M. Moorehead officiating. Burial will be in the Darbyville cemetery by M. S. Rinehart.

LUTHERAN MEN STAGE FINAL SUMMER OUTING

Lutheran Brotherhood members enjoyed their last summer outing of the year at home of Mrs. Edward Valentine, Ringgold Pike. The meeting was arranged by Mrs. Valentine in honor of the birthday of Billy May, a devoted member of the brotherhood.

Horseshoe pitching and volleyball were features of the early evening.

The lunch, supervised by Chester Wolf and a committee of 12, served sauerkraut and wieners, cheese sandwiches and iced tea.

Games under the supervision of Robert Bremer and George Griffith consisted of spelling and "mental baseball", both judged by J. D. Hummel. The meeting closed with the club singing old songs, led by John Walters.

John Rawn, Walnut Township coach, was a guest.

TWO BOYS TAKEN TO INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Two Pickaway County boys were taken to the Boys' Industrial School, near Lancaster, Friday, by Juvenile Officer Frank Goff, one of the youngsters returned as a parole violator and the other as an incorrigible.

William Herbert Coates, 14, an inmate of the County Home, was adjudged incorrigible, by Judge Lemuel Weldon, Hobart Payne, 16, who had been free on parole, was returned after being involved in several petty thefts.

vancing tank corps and the entire area affected covered with a virtual sheet of armed steel before any infantry whatever is sent into action.

When this is achieved, trenches are dug or the French troops posted in pill-boxes or advanced concrete emplacements abandoned by the Germans.

That this has not been achieved without considerable losses is apparent from the constant stream of hospital trains flowing into Paris. The high command will not disclose the actual extent of casualties and any estimates are sheerest guesswork.

It can be stated on the highest authority that as yet there has been no major offensive. The French do not attempt to overemphasize the present hostilities into anything more than preparation for the big attack that is expected shortly, but the movements thus far have been non the less important part of the allied military strategy.

Hitler Victory

By International News Service Another apparent diplomatic triumph for Chancellor Hitler was placed upon the records of the international drama today with announcement of a Soviet-Japanese agreement for an armistice along the outer Mongolian-Manchukuoan border.

The armistice brought to an end fighting that has been in progress in the disputed Nonoman area of the frontier since last May 11.

It also realized an end for which Hitler has been working ever since he brought about one of the greatest diplomatic coups of recent years — the Russo-German non-aggression pact.

What the consequences of the new armistice may be can scarcely be foreseen fully as yet, but responsible quarters in Berlin and elsewhere are now looking forward to a Soviet-Japanese non-aggression accord based on the Russo-German model.

Tremendous Possibilities

That such a pact would exercise tremendous influence on the European war goes without saying, since it would free Japan to pursue her chosen course, in China with renewed vigor and at the same time seemingly would wipe out much of the friction that has existed between Berlin and Tokio.

Conceivably it might lead Japan back to the Rome-Berlin axis, with the added weight of Soviet Russia on the side of Hitler in his war against Poland, Great Britain and France.

But whatever the future may portend in this direction, it could be said with certainty that Soviet Russia once again is making its power felt in the war-torn European scene.

With an additional 1,000,000 Soviet troops being called to the colors — giving the Soviets an estimated 3,000,000 men under arms—Russia's moves in the international arena will be watched with extreme interest in all the capitals of Europe.

Pin Hope on Reds

Berlin has made it clear that she expects, and hopes, that the Russians will participate in a "fourth and final" partition of Poland, with the U. S. S. R. taking over the white Russian section of Poland.

This fear also is gaining ground among the allies, although apparently hopes still persist there that the Russian mobilization is a precautionary measure owing to the advance of German troops through Poland in the direction of the Soviet frontier.

In London another fear arose—that Germany may invade Rumania after shattering Polish resistance and dividing Poland with Moscow.

The diplomatic developments, following one after another at an increased tempo, were watched by military events of a spectacular nature.

In Poland the German armies continued their advance and, according to a Berlin announcement, captured Bialystok northeast of Warsaw. At the same time fighting was reported in Lemberg's suburbs, far to the southeast of the beleaguered Polish capital, which the Germans say is now completely surrounded.

On the Western Front the allied assault against Germany increased in intensity. The French air force, according to a Paris communique, fought off a terrific assault by the German jet fleet, aimed at the French forces attacking the Saarland. The French advances also continued on the ground.

At sea, the British claimed to have sunk several German submarines and to have halted and seized a large number of shipments bound for the Reich.

In the United States, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in a radio address, pleaded with America to remain aloof from the European war, warning that America might lose democracy at home if it fought for it abroad.

MRS. CLARK WILL HEADS COUNTY AID DIVISION

Mrs. Clark Will, 144 West Mound Street, was elected Friday afternoon at a meeting in the office of Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon to serve as chairman of a Pickaway County advisory committee to work with the Division of Public Assistance. The division handles aid for dependent children and blind pensions.

Other officers of the advisory committee include Judge Weldon, vice chairman, and Mrs. W. T. Um, secretary. It was decided to have meetings on the third Friday of each month in the probate court offices.

Judge Henry J. Robinson, chief of the State Division of Public Assistance, was the speaker for the afternoon meeting. He discussed the problems of the bureau and the need for local cooperation and organization. The judge was introduced by Everett Shimp of Columbus, district director.

On the Pickaway County committee in addition to the officers are Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner; Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools; Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. H. G. Stevenson and Ralph E. May.

The chairman will appoint a calendar committee to plan a program for each meeting.

The Division of Public Assistance in Pickaway County is headed by Miss Virginia Smith of Williamsport. There are 69 families of dependent children in Pickaway County totalling 195 children. Eighty percent of the families are on the division's rolls because of death of the father. The amount of money coming to the county for September was $1,888, averaging $27.66 a family. Twenty-six of the families are in Circleville and 43 are in the county.

The Division lists 41 blind pensioners, each of whom received an average of $16.28 for September. The total amount received by the office for distribution was $667.66.

BOB BURNS, in the greatest of all his roles as a lawyer-philosopher, has his hands full fixing the business troubles of his neighbors. Yet somehow he manages to find time to solve the romantic problems of his daughter, played by lovely Susan Hayward, in the colorful new Paramount drama, "Our Leading Citizen," which opens Sunday at the Cliftona Theatre. Joseph Allen, Jr., Elizabeth Patterson, Gene Lockhart and Charles Bickford are also seen in the supporting cast.

AQUITANIA AT GERMANY AIMS DOCK FOLLOWING WILD CROSSING

no more reassuring than his original warning. I think it was very unwise for him to phrase both messages as he did. The women were particularly frightened and for the first three days everybody was jittery.

The high state of jitters reached by the passengers was attested by Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard law school.

"A waiter dropped a tray of dishes the second night out," chuckled the dean, "and it frightened everybody. For a moment everyone thought we had been hit."

Mrs. Pound added that the passengers got another fright when a school of porpoise swimming along in a phosphorus glow was immediately identified by excitable voyagers as a submarine.

The Pounds had been in Australia and flew to England just in time to catch the Aquitania. Most of the passengers said they were not even aware what boat they were sailing on until they were aboard the liner. Bookings for 14 other liners were represented. One woman was on the boat for three days before she learned that it was not the Mauretania on which she had booked passage.

And none knew today just where they had been while the Aquitania zig-zagged over the northern route while even its New York office unaware of where it was or when it might arrive.

The liner carried 1,625 passengers and a crew of 795. Rope ladders and life boats hung ready for instant use.

The Aquitania sailed Sunday from Southampton, although some of the passengers were called aboard as early as Friday. She was conveyed for two days by a British war craft but on the morning of the third day the convoy was gone.

When Kennedy's warning was received, the passengers were not aware that they were to have a convoy and ignorance on that score added to the mystery of the ominous tone of the message.

Scramble To Leave

According to Stevens, passengers were still scrambling to get off the boat when she moved out into the channel.

Except for the try dropping incident and the fact that a steward once inadvertently stepped on an alarm button, the crossing was without incident after the jitters wore off—with one exception.

About the third day out, some passengers claimed to have seen a large spot of oil on the water and to have detected a strong odor of oil. They thought a ship—possibly a submarine—might have sunk at that point. Others put down the report of the oil spot as "one of a million rumors which kept us upset for three days."

CHECKS TIRE THEFTS

Police are checking reports of two tire thefts that occurred Friday evening in Circleville. A tire, tube and wheel were taken from the car of James McCain, Clinton Street, parked at the Win-orr plant, and a tire was taken from the car of Eldon (Tink) Hill, R. F. D. 2, from its parking place near the high school football field.

EAGLE TAKES LEADERSHIP AS ISOLATIONIST

we intend to become forever involved in this age old struggle between the nations of Europe," said the colonel. "Let us not delude ourselves. If we enter the quarrels of Europe during the war we must stay in them in time of peace as well."

"It is madness to send our soldiers to be killed as we did in the last war if we turn the course of peace over to the greed, the fear, and the intrigue of European nations."

"Democracy itself may not survive. If we enter fighting for democracy abroad we may end by losing it at home."

If people in the United States know the truth, and are fully and accurately informed, said the flier, they are not likely to be dragged into the war by propaganda. He marshalled an imposing array of benefits to the United States and to the world which he said would accrue from America's decision to stay out of European quarrels.

Hope Lies In U. S.

"And if Europe is prostrated again by war, as she has been so often in the past," he continued, "then the greatest hope for our western civilization lies in America. By staying out of war ourselves, we may even bring peace to Europe more quickly. Let us look to our own defenses and to our own character. If we attend to them, we have no need to fear what happens elsewhere. If we do not attend to them, nothing can save us."

"If war brings more dark ages to Europe, we can better preserve those things which we love and which we mourn the passing of in Europe today by preserving them here, by strengthening them here, rather than by hurling ourselves thoughtlessly to their desire over there and thus destroying all in the conflagration."

The Colonel disclosed his intentions of making his views on the European situation known to the country some weeks ago, and last Sunday advised them that he believed the time was ripe for the speech. He conferred with several associates of his father, who advocated an "isolationist" policy for the American government when he was a member of congress from Minnesota, before drafting the address. He delivered the talk the day after he ended five months of special duty with the war department in which he gave the government the benefit of his knowledge of the German air force.

DANCE CALLERS MAY PROVIDE OWN TILT MUSIC

Here's good news for callers of old-fashioned dances who wish to participate in the Pumpkin Show competition for cash prizes. Callers will be permitted to use their own music. Organizations with which they are accustomed to appearing may be used to accompany the callers.

More than $50 will be given to fiddlers, old-fashioned dancers and callers by the Pickaway County Agricultural Society during the Pumpkin Show. The competition will be conducted three days of the big fall event, which opens October 18. The prize money will be divided into awards of $10, $5 and $2.50 for each division, including, fiddling, calling and square dancing.

Directors of the old-fashioned dance feature decided after conferring with several callers who planned to enter the contest that they would permit each to use his own music. This decision should add much to the interest in the competition, because all callers like to have the best music available when they start their work.

The feature, something new for the Pumpkin Show, promises to provide much entertainment, in addition to being of value financially to the competitors.

In the United States, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, in a radio address, pleaded with America to remain aloof from the European war, warning that America might lose democracy at home if it fought for it abroad.

MRS. CLARK WILL HEADS COUNTY AID DIVISION

Mrs. Clark Will, 144 West Mound Street, was elected Friday afternoon at a meeting in the office of Probate Judge Lemuel Weldon to serve as chairman of a Pickaway County advisory committee to work with the Division of Public Assistance. The division handles aid for dependent children and blind pensions.

Other officers of the advisory committee include Judge Weldon, vice chairman, and Mrs. W. T. Elm, secretary. It was decided to have meetings on the third Friday of each month in the probate court offices.

Judge Henry J. Robinson, chief of the State Division of Public Assistance, was the speaker for the afternoon meeting. He discussed the problems of the bureau and the need for local cooperation and organization. The judge was introduced by Everett Shimp of Columbus, district director.

On the Pickaway County committee in addition to the officers are Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner; Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools; Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Mrs. H. G. Stevenson and Ralph E. May.

The chairman will appoint a calendar committee to plan a program for each meeting.

The Division of Public Assistance in Pickaway County is headed by Miss Virginia Smith of Williamsport. There are 69 families of dependent children in Pickaway County totalling 195 children. Eighty percent of the families are on the division's rolls because of death of the father. The amount of money coming to the county for September was $1,888, averaging $27.66 a family. Twenty-six of the families are in Circleville and 43 are in the county.

The Division lists 41 blind pensioners, each of whom received an average of $16.28 for September. The total amount received by the office for distribution was $667.66.

AQUITANIA AT GERMANY AIMS DOCK FOLLOWING AT DESTRUCTION WILD CROSSING

no more reassuring than his original warning. I think it was very unwise for him to phrase both messages as he did. The women were particularly frightened and for the first three days everybody was jittery.

The high state of jitters reached by the passengers was attested by Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard law school.

"A waiter dropped a tray of dishes the second night out," he chuckled the dean, "and it frightened everybody. For a moment everyone thought we had been hit."

Mrs. Pound added that the passengers got another fright when a school of porpoise swimming along in a phosphorus glow was immediately identified by excitable voyagers as a submarine.

The Pounds had been in Australia and flew to England just in time to catch the Aquitania. Most of the passengers said they were not even aware what boat they were sailing on until they were aboard the liner. Bookings for 14 other liners were represented. One woman was on the boat for three days before she learned that it was not the Mauretania on which she had booked passage. And none knew today just where they had been while the Aquitania zig-zagged over the northern route while even its New York office unaware of where it was or when it might arrive.

The liner carried 1,625 passengers and a crew of 795. Rope ladders and life boats hung ready for instant use.

The Aquitania sailed Sunday from Southampton, although some of the passengers were called aboard as early as Friday. She was conveyed for two days by a British war craft but on the morning of the third day the convey was gone.

When Kennedy's warning was received, the passengers were not aware that they were to have a convey and ignorance on that score added to the mystery of the ominous tone of the message.

Scramble To Leave According to Stevens, passengers were still scrambling to get off the boat when she moved out into the channel.

Except for the try dropping incident and the fact that a stewardess inadvertently stepped on an alarm button, the crossing was without incident after the jitters were off—with one exception.

About the third day out, some passengers claimed to have seen a large spot of oil on the water and to have detected a strong odor of oil. They thought a ship—possibly a submarine—might have sunk at that point. Others put down the report of the oil spot as "one of a million rumors which kept us upset for three days."

CHECKS TIRE THEFTS

Police are checking reports of two tire thefts that occurred Friday evening in Circleville. A tire, tube and wheel were taken from the car of James McCain, Clinton Street, parked at the Win-or plant, and a tire was taken from the car of Eldon (Tink) Hill, R. F. D. 2, from its parking place near the high school football field.

EAGLE TAKES LEADERSHIP AS ISOLATIONIST

we intend to become forever involved in this age old struggle between the nations of Europe," said the colonel. "Let us not delude ourselves. If we enter the quarrels of Europe during the war we must stay in them in time of peace as well.

"It is madness to send our soldiers to be killed as we did in the last war if we turn the course of peace over to the greed, the fear, and the intrigue of European nations.

"Democracy itself may not survive. If we enter fighting for democracy abroad we may end by losing it at home."

If people in the United States know the truth, and are fully and accurately informed, said the flier, they are not likely to be dragged into the war by propaganda. He marshalled an imposing array of benefits to the United States and to the world which we said would accrue from America's decision to stay out of European quarrels.

Hope Lies In U. S.

"And if Europe is prostrated again by war, as she has been so often in the past," he continued, "then the greatest hope for our western civilization lies in America. By staying out of war ourselves, we may even bring peace to Europe more quickly. Let us look to our own defenses and to our own character. If we attend to them, we have no need to fear what happens elsewhere. If we do not attend to them, nothing can save us.

"If war brings more dark ages to Europe, we can better preserve those things which we love and which we mourn the passing of in Europe today by preserving them here, by strengthening them here, rather than by hurling ourselves thoughtlessly to their desire over there and thus destroying all in the conflagration. . ."

The Colonel disclosed his intentions of making his views on the European situation known to the country some weeks ago, and last Sunday advised them that he believed the time was ripe for the speech. He conferred with several associates of his father, who advocated an "isolationist" policy for the American government when he was a member of congress from Minnesota, before drafting the address. He delivered the talk the day after he ended five months of special duty with the war department in which he gave the government the benefit of his knowledge of the German air force.

ness boom, reduce unemployment and lift prices of many commodities.

One of the leaders in the fight against repeal said privately that this feeling is the most menacing faced by them.

Democratic leaders of the senate are expected to return to Washington before the special session meets next Thursday. Senator Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic floor leader, is expected to return Monday. Senator Pittman (D) Nevada, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, is expected to be here Wednesday.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR INFANT LA RUE

Daniel, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles LaRue of near Ashville, died Saturday at 1:30 a. m. in Berger Hospital where he was born prematurely last Monday. The child's twin brother, David, remains in the hospital incubator and seems to be gaining strength.

The funeral for the infant was conducted Saturday afternoon in the Crites and VanCleve funeral home, Stoutsville, the Rev. Walter C. Peters of Ashville officiating. Burial was in Reber Hill cemetery.

The infant is survived by his parents, two brothers, Billy and David, and a sister, Juanita.
